Win-War Corps Comes In As End-War Group Leaves

Times News Services

WASHINGTON — As the peace people faded in retreat from the streets of the U.S. Capitol today, Rev. Carl McIntire and his Bible-carrying cohorts were warming up for Saturday's planned win-the-war march to the Washington Monument.

The protesters for peace, their design to stop the war in Vietnam by stopping the government, frustrated but not abandoned, vowed to return.

"This country is going to have to deal with us," said demonstration organizer Renie Davis. "It's not enough to put us all in jail because we're all willing to go to jail and stay there to end the war."

His supporters had faltered against the government's overwhelming and well-prepared police and military power. Arrested by the thousands, they ran out of bodies.

SECOND MARCH

The McIntire-sponsored march for a "military victory," his second here in six months, follows three weeks of anti-war demonstrations. Tonight, to warm up for the march, McIntire plans a service on the steps of Congress.

HYDRO TOWER SABOTAGED

AGASSIZ (CP) — Police said Thursday night a man-made explosion damaged a B.C. Hydro transmission tower near here, sending a 360,000-volt power line plunging into the Fraser River.

The explosion partially collapsed the tower about half a mile south of the Agassiz-Rosedale bridge. Alternative power lines automatically took up the power load and there was no interruption in service.

RCMP said the explosion was man-made but were unable to find any evidence as to the type of explosive used.

The damage was first reported by tugboat crews who found a conductor in the river. The tower supported the power line where it spans the Fraser River.

Royal Marine Parade Followed by Banquet

By JUDY CURRIE

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Royal Marines, white path helmets reflecting the moonlight, beat a ceremonial retreat Thursday night to bring to a close the fourth full day of the royal tour of British Columbia.

The nearly 300 guests at a reception on the royal yacht Britannia lined the railings of the vessel to watch the impressive ceremonial slow march along a darkened dock.

The evening drew to a close with the sunset ceremony and the lowering of the Canadian flag and the white ensign of the Royal navy.

The Royal Family returned to Vancouver from a two-day tour of the British Columbia interior Thursday evening to entertain 40 guests at a private dinner on the yacht, and 100 more at a reception which followed.

The reception was on the deck of the Queen's yacht, covered with a red and white striped awning for the occasion.

Among those present were many civic leaders, including mayors of the Greater Vancouver municipalities, provincial and federal government figures.

Members of the Vancouver and Victoria business community were present, as were people like skier Nancy Greene-Raine, Chief Dan George, and Jana Jorgenson, Miss Teen Canada 1970.

Oil Route Speech Queried

By JOHN MIKA
Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Prime Minister Pierre Elliot Trudeau today told the Commons he would examine the speech made Thursday by Energy, Mines and Resources Deputy Minister Jack Austin in Anchorage, Alaska, to determine if it needed cabinet clarification.

He was replying to questions by Tomi Barnett (NDP-Cornwall-Alberta) who expressed concern that Austin had declared Ottawa was prepared to accept the proposed tanker route for Alaskan oil if the U.S. gave assurances precautionary measures would be taken to protect the Canadian west coast from pollution damage.

"I am not aware of that statement," Trudeau replied.

Barnett rephrased his question to ask "whether Canada has officially indicated to the U.S. the terms and conditions which this country feels would be acceptable for the establishment of an oil tanker route on the Pacific between Alaska and other states of the U.S."

The prime minister replied he was "rather sure" Canadian officials had not done so because Ottawa had no legal right to tell the U.S. how it can move oil on the high seas.

He was attacked earlier this week by opposition MPs for not ordering the Canadian delegation last Monday in Washington to demand abandonment of the proposal instead of asking about safety assurances, he said.

MINOR PROBLEM

However, Austin added the northern oil route controversy was a minor problem in comparison with the whole question of future energy policies in both countries.

He said he was certain the sheer size of the total energy problem would result in both countries agreeing on "balance of objectives" of mutual advantage in oil, gas and all energy resource development and use — apparently a euphemism on the controversial "continental energy" concept.

SHARP DIRECTION

Sharp has been directing official government contacts with Washington about the proposed Alaskan pipeline-tanker route which he personally has criticized as a threat to B.C. lower mainland waters.

W. Germany Poised To Let Mark Float

BONN (CP) — Economics Minister Karl Schiller won wide cabinet support today for his proposal to unilaterally float the West German mark if a Common Market meeting in Brussels Saturday cannot agree on joint action to halt the massive U.S. dollar inflow into Europe.

Government spokesman Conrad Ahlers indicated this to reporters as the cabinet broke up for lunch before continuing its deliberations on a broad program of external and internal economic stabilization measures to deal with the dollar crisis.

Ahlers said the cabinet spent most of the morning discussing proposals to float the mark. He gave no details but said, in answer to questions, that its members had been "overwhelmingly unanimous" on the issue.

Earlier, informed sources said Schiller had proposed to the cabinet that the mark should be floated unless Saturday's meeting of the Common Market's council of ministers in Brussels agreed to stop the U.S. dollar flow by joint European measures that are in line with "free market economy" principles.

SEEKS OWN LEVEL

This would mean that, instead of being fixed to an upper and lower exchange rate against the U.S. dollar as at present, it would be released and allowed to find its own level on foreign currency markets.

Such a move could be tantamount to revaluation. The mark was floated for nearly four weeks in October, 1969, before being revalued by 9.29 per cent.

The government's five-man council of independent economic advisers said in a report they published today favoring a floating mark that it would probably lead to an increase in the value of the mark against foreign currencies.

The council, known here as "the five wise men," said they had proposed the floating to Schiller at a meeting Thursday on the assumption that the six Common Market partners would be unable to

HELP FOR HOME BUYERS

OTTAWA (CP) — The government is seeking agreements with the provinces to provide interest-rate rebates to house buyers. Robert Andras, minister responsible for housing, told the Commons today.

He said Quebec had already agreed to make three per cent interest rebates to lower the cost of housing and other similar agreements were being discussed.

Under the plan, the interest on loans for housing would be partially paid by the provincial government. It applies to purchasers with low incomes.

'Chicken Feed' Budget Cuts Continue

After two days of what one alderman called "chicken feed" budget cutting, Victoria city taxpayers still face a tax increase of 5.5 mills.

The figure is down from the 7.92 mills council started with Wednesday morning, but some aldermen want to get down to the four-mill levy.

Finishing a long afternoon session of attacking the record budget, Ald. Tom Christie remarked, "These guys don't know how to slash a budget — that was just chicken feed."

Council met again this afternoon.

SOME REGRET

Last year's mill rate reduction — from 39.3 to 37.5 — was recalled with some regret as the meeting session ended.

Aldermen did suggest, however, that since there was a reduction last year, this year's increase is not so unsavory.

The budget cuts amounted to roughly $380,000 from the preliminary budget of $25,244,863. Last year's actual expenditures were $22,499,329.

Facing the large increase in the budget prompted suggestions of ways to improve administration and cut back on the cost of some services.

CONTRACTING OUT

The administration was asked to study the possibility of bringing the traffic engineering department under the public works department, and eliminating the civil defence organization in the city.

Ald. Harold Olafson tried to convince aldermen that contracting out janitorial, gardening and other services would bring savings through elimination of employee fringe benefit costs, but no action was taken.

If the 5.5 mills increase is taken into account, the full municipal, school, hospital mill rate for Victoria property owners is 75.41.

This means taxpayers would pay $75.41 taxes for each $1,000 worth of taxable assessment.

Some assessments are up this year, so that actual tax increases to individuals will be higher on both counts.

Chief Dan George, who attended the private dinner with his daughter, said he had spoken with the Queen, but was "too shy" to ask whether she had seen the movie Little Big Man for which he won an Academy Award nomination.

CHIEF IMPRESSIVE

The chief was an impressive figure in his black beaded and sequined costume, made for him by his late wife. The costume, he explained, is the ceremonial garb of the Coast Salish, which comprises many tribes.

Another guest at the dinner was Steve Garrod, recently-elected president of the Alma Mater Society of the University of British Columbia, who describes himself as a hippie, anti-monarchy radical.

He was told by police that he had arrived too late to get aboard. But word came from the yacht that he was allowed to join the dinner party.

These occurrences were oddball exceptions in a generally relaxing day in which the Royal Family — on the fourth day of a 10-day B.C. centennial tour — visited the Okanagan Valley communities of Kelowna and Vernon and made an airport appearance at Kamloops before flying to Vancouver for the Britannia dinner party.

They had spent the previous night in Penticton, another Okanagan community, with their only hotel stop. Prior to that, and from now on, their home away from home will be the Britannia.

Today, the royal party stayed in the Vancouver-New Westminster-Burnaby area on a 12-hour schedule that included a citizenship court appearance, a Vancouver civic dinner and a visit to New Westminster May Day celebrations.

The Indians had their activities during Thursday's activities.

At Kamloops, in an outdoor ceremony in a natural amphitheatre setting of rolling sagebrush hills, the Indians gave a traditional welcome to the Queen.

Menu for the private dinner was filet de boeuf petit-dejeuner, green beans, celery, and potato croquettes, with salad and Duchess de Fletan au gratin to start.

Dessert was "bombe glacee a la menthe."

Among those at the dinner were Consumer Affairs Minister Ron Basford and Mrs. Basford, Mayor Tom Campbell of Vancouver and Mrs. Campbell, Chief Justice J. O. Wilson of the Supreme Court and Mrs. Wilson, and several prominent provincial and religious leaders.

Also in attendance were athletes Debbie Brill, Canadian high jump champion; Harry Jerome, B.C. athlete of the century, and Ken Olynyk, B.C. high school male athlete of the year.

In an address at the Queen Elizabeth Theatre today, the Queen said that unity in Canada does not mean uniformity.

"No one expects or demands our new citizens desert their heritage, to reject their past or to deny their identity," she said.

She said that when the Crown colony of British Columbia freely decided 100 years ago to join the Dominion of Canada, the decision was not unlike that of every new citizen since them.

"In each case, it is a choice for Canada."

Shadow Mischief

Oddball Occurrences Brighten Royal Tour

By DAVE STOCKARD

VANCOUVER (CP) — Some of the wilder fringes of a new and unpredictable generation brushed shoulders Thursday with the Royal Family.

A guest turned up late for a private dinner party aboard the royal yacht Britannia, in a motorcade of wildly decorated old cars and wearing a velvet suit and a wide-brimmed fur hat.

And on another occasion a young man bolted out of the crowd and thrust a package into the Queen's hands.

As it turned out, the wrapped object was a small gift of affection — a jade cross — but it was the kind of unscheduled offering that makes security men nervous.

But it was a brief flap. As a royal tour official put it later, when the Queen, Prince Philip and Princess Anne had flown back to Vancouver from Kamloops, where the incident occurred:

"He was not arrested. He just wanted to do his little thing and he did it."

DONOR AN ACTOR

The impromptu gift-giver later identified himself as Patrick Ehrhart, 21, an unemployed actor from Kamloops and a member of the Baha'i faith.

He said he thought the Queen was marvellous and he had no harm.

The man who arrived at Britannia's berth wearing the fur hat was Steve Garrod, president of the University of British Columbia student council.

He described himself as a hippie, anti-monarchy radical. He was told by police that he had arrived too late to get aboard. But word came from the yacht that he was allowed to join the dinner party.

The mark's official rate is 27.13 U.S. cents. It is now selling for nearly 28 cents, or 3.58 marks to the U.S. dollar.

Up to now the mark's value on exchange markets has been restricted by international monetary agreements. Under these agreements, government banks intervene to support the currency if it fluctuates to high above or below the floor price of 27½ cents.

RUSH SUBSIDIES

In Europe, the rush to get rid of U.S. dollars subsidized while speculators awaited the weekend moves to ease the crisis.

London's foreign exchange market reported only quiet trading. The U.S. dollar was marginally firmer at $2,418 to the pound sterling.

The free market price of gold, traditional refuge in times of currency trouble, dropped sharply to $39,875 an ounce from Thursday's $40.30.

On the Frankfurt exchange, the U.S. dollar rallied to 3.5859 marks, slightly up from 3.58 at the close Thursday.

In Ottawa, Finance Minister Edgar Benson said the value of the Canadian dollar has "not been affected materially" as a result of the monetary crisis.

Mr. Garrod, who had received an official invitation several weeks ago, arrived in a motorcade of wildly-decorated old cars just as the dinner was about to start.

He was told by police he was too late to attend, but then word came from the yacht that he was allowed to join the dinner party.

So Mr. Garrod, attired in a red velvet suit and wide-brimmed fur hat, went in to dinner.

SUBDIVISION

It is to be the second major housing proposal in this general area.

Last month, Thetis Park Estates Ltd. announced plans for a 500 to 700-acre subdivision on the west side of Thetis Lake Park.

The Broadmead Farms Ltd. subdivision in the Royal Oak district of Saanich, under way for several years, will cover 713 acres.

The gravel pit proposal would involve relocation of the existing Metchosin Road for terraced digging of close to 30 million tons of gravel, it is understood.

The development envisages an 18-hole golf course as well as a public park on 10 acres overlooking the sea.

Construction of a waterfront road would link the planned development with Esquimalt Lagoon.

Other features of the development are understood to include:

- The first phase of the development would be single houses and the golf course;
- A yacht and small boat marina;
- Total open space would be almost 200 acres.

The existing gravel pit is believed to have a life of 15 years. Terraced areas would be used for high-rise and medium-rise apartments.

Because of the effects of such a large residential development, close attention is expected to be paid to such local services as streets, sewers and so on.

Area Students Take Part In Census-Linked Project

Students in all but two Greater Victoria district elementary, junior and senior secondary schools will be asked to participate in a nation-wide census project during the last two weeks of May.

The program was announced Thursday by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics in Ottawa and will involve nearly one million students in 21 metropolitan areas in Canada.

The project is designed to give students an understanding of how the census works and prepare them to assist their parents, if necessary, in completing the official census questionnaires which all households will receive starting May 25.

TWO SCHOOLS OUT

The official census is compulsory, but the school project is voluntary.

Victoria school board community information officer Bill Stavdal said today S. J. Willis Junior Secondary and Dean Heights Vocational will not participate.

Sooke and Saanich district schools also are not in the project.

Participating students in social studies classes will fill out special student census forms asking 14 questions.

No names will be entered on the forms. The data will be computer-processed in Ottawa and returned to participating districts in about a year.

Victoria school board chairman Allan McKinnon said the scheme is valid because it explains to young people how an important national project works.

DBS PROJECT

McKinnon said the project was initiated by the DBS, which contacted the board and received its approval last fall. The project was to have begun in January or February but was delayed until May.

The federal census differs this year from past censuses in that householders must complete the questionnaires themselves. For this reason, McKinnon said, the DBS "wants to create a favorable image or climate to conduct the census in."

Part of the way to do this, he said, is to make school children familiar with the process.

Questions the students will be answering include, sex, age, place of parents' birth, how much television they watch a week, how much reading they do each week, what sections of the newspaper they read and their most important reason for attending school.

Stavdal said the school project can be answered four ways. Students can check boxes saying they go to school because the law requires it; their parents require it, they want to continue their education or want to improve their job opportunities.

Participating students also will learn the history of the census, how and why censuses are taken, how census information is processed and kept confidential and the uses to which census information is put.

The Victoria end of the project will involve 17,000 students in 537 classes.

When the data from the student census has been tabulated, copies will be prepared in a way which will allow teachers, students and school officials to compare the characteristics of students in their districts with those of students across the country.

Stray Feathers

By HAROLD HOSFORD

In 1970 more than 2,000 pairs of nesting birds in British Columbia and the Yukon came under the watchful eyes of naturalists. We know the number was at least that high because 2,090 cards with detailed notes on as many nests were turned in to the British Columbia Nest Record Scheme last year.

Now in its 17th season, the BCNRS, aided by local and visiting naturalists, has amassed a vast store of information on breeding biology and distribution of the birds of this area — and it's all on file at the scheme's offices in the zoology department of the University of British Columbia in Vancouver. It's the largest collection of information of this kind in Canada with records of more than 27,000 nests on file.

HEAVY USE

Under the efficient curatorial direction of Mrs. W. J. Smith of Vancouver, the scheme comes in for heavy use by scientists and amateur birders studying the dynamics of bird reproduction. In 1970 alone, studies were carried out on such species as the robin, the ring-necked pheasant, pine siskin, Brewer's blackbird, cliff swallow, white pelican and northwestern crow.

Over the years 538 naturalists have contributed to the success of the scheme among them such well-known Victorians as Miss E. K. Lemon, Des Bolton, Cy Morehen and Rod MacKenzie Grieve.

Growing concern about the deterioration of the environment and its effect on wildlife has given new impetus to the scheme in recent years. Originally designed to provide statistical information on nesting birds and for mapping breeding distribution, the scheme now serves as a tool in measuring the sensitivity of birds to alterations in their environment.

CONTINENTAL

Part of a program which covers most of North America, the scheme has become part of a continental system for monitoring trends in bird populations and changes in breeding distribution, changes which may ultimately be indicators of environmental deterioration hazardous to man.

While these are its main objectives, the scheme often turns up unexpected information throwing new light on the relationships of birds. For example, in 1970, a robin fed a young meadowlark for two weeks in the Summerland area. Meanwhile at Penticton, a nest of Oregon juncos were adopted by a pair of robins. Five young juncos were successfully raised by the foster parents.

Two new species were added to the B.C. file last year, the prairie falcon and pygmy owl. Both are residents of the province but this was the first year their nests had been recorded for the scheme. Two falcon nests were found in the Spences Bridge area. Adams and Shuswap Lakes were the sites of the owl's nests.

253 SPECIES

Of the 253 species so far represented in the files of the scheme, the glaucous-winged gull heads the list with 3365 nests reported. The robin is second at 2023. Such rarities as the green heron, Anna's hummingbird and the mockingbird have only one nest report card while the cowbird — which lays its eggs in other birds nests — has been recorded 245 times. There's a subject for study.

Information about nests is recorded by the finder on TAIPEI, Taiwan (NYT) — A formal correctness has crept into relations between the government of Nationalist China and representatives of the United States in place of the deep warmth that once existed.

The special relationship we used to have has come to an end," an American said, attributing the change to Taiwan officials' unhappiness over new trends in United States policy toward Communist China.

On the surface the Nationalist Chinese leadership has reacted calmly to a series of developments that within a few weeks have included the first reference by an American president to the "People's Republic of China," a visit by an American table tennis team and American journalists to the mainland with presidential blessing and a report by a presidential commission recommending that the Peking government be admitted to the United Nations.

Below this surface calm there are indications that officials feel deeply hurt by what they regard as virtual betrayal by an old and trusted friend. Taiwan officials speak with obvious distress of prominent and respected Americans who now want to throw the Chiang Kai-shek "gang" out of the United Nations.

They use words like "appeasement" and "surrender" to describe Americans as naive and draw comparisons with the past. They recall that the British attempted to appease Hitler and that American peace negotiations with Japan did not forestall the Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor.

Chinese papers that contain editorials references to "ugly Americans," described American China policy as "ill-conceived" and declared that the United States had forfeited its role as "leader of the anti-Communist" nations. Some Americans are concerned that the press could generate a public anger.

The Unwinnable War

THE NEWS HEADLINES SAY violence by some participants brought the inevitable violence by police, and further thousands of heretofore pacifist persons no doubt have been added to the militant ranks.

The government's dilemma is clear. Citizens and the nation's administration must be protected from the actions of a minority; yet the right of peaceful protest must be preserved. Police continued to use the same methods of control in the past week that they used against arsonist gangs, rampaging mobs in Chicago, Negro militants in the south, and dangerous outbreaks in other cities. But the war veterans speak from a platform that differs from the others.

The Washington confrontations of this week differed from previous big-scale demonstrations. The vast parade of Negroes and their sympathizers that dominated the capital as they listened to the historic address of Martin Luther King Jr. was an almost silent exhibition of the power of massed humanity. The contrasting mob scenes on another occasion when gangs ran through Washington setting fires and smashing property were a demonstration of maddened people seeking an outlet for their frustration and protest.

They carry the conviction of men who have done what their government required of them but now are determined to stop the sacrifice of others. Their anti-Vietnam protest has been picked up in other cities by young demonstrators, mostly peaceful. Never in history has so open and widespread a public outcry been made against a government's policy of war, and by people who act in the name of patriotism.

Mr. Nixon, who roused country-wide antagonism for not bringing troops home, has gained little from a reversal of this policy. Now he is attacked for not bringing them home quickly enough. But he also has an implacable enemy in Southeast Asia for whom each of Mr. Nixon's domestic predicaments is a victory.

History can have few instances of so sharply horned — and probably predictable — a dilemma. This war will be won neither at home nor abroad. Today's situation sets an unforgettable precedent. It may well, as has been suggested, find its place in history as the last foreign war in which the United States was engaged.

The police and military reaction has been reported. The thousands rounded up for temporary detention included many who had no part in the demonstrations but were merely passing through the streets or caught in the crowd. The inevitable violence by some participants brought the inevitable violence by police, and further thousands of heretofore pacifist persons no doubt have been added to the militant ranks.

The government's dilemma is clear. Citizens and the nation's administration must be protected from the actions of a minority; yet the right of peaceful protest must be preserved. Police continued to use the same methods of control in the past week that they used against arsonist gangs, rampaging mobs in Chicago, Negro militants in the south, and dangerous outbreaks in other cities. But the war veterans speak from a platform that differs from the others.

They carry the conviction of men who have done what their government required of them but now are determined to stop the sacrifice of others. Their anti-Vietnam protest has been picked up in other cities by young demonstrators, mostly peaceful. Never in history has so open and widespread a public outcry been made against a government's policy of war, and by people who act in the name of patriotism.

We're Not Driving So Well

TWO QUALIFICATIONS MUST be added to the motor vehicle branch's analysis of British Columbia accident reports last year — a study which, on the surface, seems to discount popular conceptions of the causes of such mishaps. The study indicates that most accidents in the province involved normally alert motorists driving vehicles in good condition in clear weather. Extremely fatigued drivers, impaired drivers and drivers with physical defects were reportedly involved in a minority of cases.

The first qualification is that the study is based on accident reports produced by those involved in the accidents themselves — and conceivably framed in such a way as to avoid incriminating the participant. The second qualification — which concerns a reduction in last year's total of reportable accidents, but not of fatalities, compared with the year before — is that from last July onward, only mishaps causing injury or property damage of $200 or more were reported. Previously, any accident in which injury occurred or damage amounted to $100 required a report.

The inference to be drawn from the qualifications is that motorists driving in British Columbia last year were not driving as well as the comparisons indicate — and the comparisons were based on reports by people who were something less than disinterested. It may be significant that the number of people killed in 1970 was 559, in the year before, 542.

It would be encouraging to believe that British Columbians are driving more carefully and are avoiding the hazards of driving after drinking. Against the acceptance of that belief is an American statistic, so far credible, that of serious accidents, some 55 per cent were related in some way to liquor.

Do They Need A Dam?

By CLAIRE STERLING

BANGKOK—In just a few weeks the U.S. Bureau of Reclamation—a gung-ho band of dam builders if ever there was one—will retire from the field here in some confusion.

The bureau's engineers have spent eight years and $12 million in the Mekong basin, working in rugged territory so infested with communist guerrillas that they often needed troop protection.

Their mission was to determine whether it is feasible to build, at Pa Mong, the first of five or six proposed mainstream dams across Indochina's Mekong River, which has twice the flow of the Nile and has never been dammed before.

Times Changed

The answer, to be published this June in the fourteenth and last volume of the study, is going to be yes. But that is no longer the question.

When the bureau began its feasibility study, billion-dollar dams like Pa Mong were a straightforward proposition: If the dam could stand up, store water, and produce plenty of cheap power, why not? But those were the days when there were no ecologists underfoot and almost everybody thought big dams meant instant progress. Times have certainly changed.

Even today Pa Mong has much to recommend it. The site, a deep gorge on the Thailand-Laos border 10 miles above Vientiane, is perfect.

The storage space for water, 107 billion cubic meters, is enormous. The power potential is stunning: 21.5 billion kilowatt hours a year, twice the High Aswan's and 50 per cent more than the Grand Coulee's.

Furthermore, building Pa Mong would double the power capacity of two other proposed dams in Cambodia, at Samnor and Stung Treng. This would raise the combined capacity of just these three—not counting two or three others on the mainstream and dozens more on tributaries, under the Mekong development scheme—to 12 times more than the riparian states of Laos, Thailand, Cambodia and South Vietnam have now.

Nevertheless, power installed is not necessarily power consumed, as the Egyptians, who have yet to find a use for even a third of theirs, have discovered. Besides, whatever Pa Mong's power might do for (or to) the riparian states, the bills could be ruinous.

The price, stripped down, is supposed to be $1.1 billion, but then there are all those extras. For instance, the 3,850-square kilometer lake formed behind Pa Mong would drown 94,000 acres of mostly prime farmland in three of the Mekong Basin's richest valleys: Loey, Ban Don, Vong Vien.

These lost lands together with forest, buildings and towns would be worth $57 million according to the reclamation bureau and twice that according to the Mekong committee's U.N.-staffed secretariat.

At present the lands are occupied by 311,150 people who would become 500,000 by the time the dam was done should it be decided on tomorrow: a good many more people than any dam has displaced so far.

There being no suitable lowlands left, the refugees would be moved—"deported," some Thais say—to stony, arid uplands too high for pumped irrigation, at a cost of $7 a head by the bureau's reckoning and $1,000 dollars to $2,000 a head by the secretariat's.

500,000 Uprooted

The half million people uprooted and impoverished by the dam would therefore get no irrigation benefits from it, about as desirable an arrangement just south of Mao Tse-tung's border as he could dream up. What's more, only 106,000 other farmers could get such benefits, with a single irrigated acre apiece. Some day the irrigated area might cover 4 million acres, but not for the better part of another century.

In theory, irrigation could double rice yields and permit two or three crops a year, doing wonders for farmers with little if any cash income. But the choice land would be irredeemably beneath the dam's new lake. The rest is mostly poor laterite soil, in northeast Thailand especially, and would soon be exhausted under intensive cultivation.

In any case, two or three crops a year would require that much more work for farmers accustomed to planting only when the monsoons come, who know nothing about irrigating anyway. The difficulties are already familiar to Thailand's royal irrigation department, which has spent $180 million to develop irrigation in the past two years, with only about 400 acres to show for it.

To be agriculturally useful, therefore, Pa Mong's waters would require investments of not only some $400 an acre to prepare the land but five times as much for cheap fertilizer and farm credits, feeder roads and access to markets, training and motivation for farmers provided by a far bigger and better extension service than these countries (or ours) are likely to produce in our lifetime.

What with one thing and another, then, the modest goal of bringing 112,000 acres under irrigation could cost Thailand and Laos no less than a quarter of a billion dollars.

Underground Salt

This presupposes that northeast Thailand could be irrigated. Several thousand square kilometers of rock salt have been found beneath its surface, and much of its groundwater is so saline already that U.S. aid workers bore a well for a rural school ended by forming a village salt co-operative instead.

A number of qualified soil experts feel that irrigation therefore must be ruled out altogether here, for fear that it would either bring the salts to the surface or carry them underground to the river.

Another indispensable supposition is that Pa Mong could provide more than enough water to irrigate the whole Vientiane plain and northeast Thailand.

Yet three new lakes behind tributary dams in Thailand have choked up so quickly with water hyacinth that, because of transpiration, none has filled up and one has sunk almost beneath the minimum needed for the turbines. Considering that even a partial blanket of hyacinth can absorb the entire intake of a reservoir in Thailand during the dry season, Pa Mong's water supply can scarcely be taken for granted.

River navigation would be improved for several hundred miles north and south, but might as easily be disrupted by scouring expected to hollow out 30 feet or more of the riverbed downstream. Water will flow to the delta in the dry season, but 10 times more could come from one of two other proposed dams in Cambodia.

Terrorist Threat

Inasmuch as Cambodia and South Vietnam are too far away, and Laos doesn't need any power now that nine countries have given it the $33 million Nam Ngum Dam as a gift, the power would be strictly for Thailand. That would be nice for the Thais, who have a brisk growth rate and could probably use quite a lot eventually, if they were sure they wanted it. But Pa Mong, run by a regional or international consortium, would not be theirs.

It might for years be at the mercy of homegrown communist terrorists or the Pathet Lao. Its power might be cheaper than the thermal of nuclear kind but only if used to capacity from the start over a hundred-year span.

And it would take such a crippling initial investment that very little Thai capital would be left over for anything else. The power would also go mainly to Bangkok, whereas nine out of 10 Thais are mostly scattered in some 30,000 villages elsewhere. These would have to wait for costly grids to reach them at the projected rate of 100 villages a year.

THE MONARCHY

Compromise No Answer

By JOHN NICHOL

We have a string of embassies around the world, inhabited by Ambassadors, High Commissioners, Ministers, Counsuls-General, and other assorted grand viziers.

And we also have a steady program of Prime Ministerial visits abroad, and ovations by other ministers to all corners of the earth.

Then beyond that again we have a constant flow of MPs and Senators to various international events. We also have provincial premiers and their people darting in all directions.

Now on top of all this we have a new and continuing series of official foreign tours by the Governor-General.

* * *

His Excellency and Mrs. Michener have just returned from a two-week state visit to the Netherlands, Belgium and Luxembourg.

In February and March of 1969 they visited the countries of the Caribbean.

There is a press report that they may be off to Iran later this year.

All of this official visiting by our Governor-General is something brand-new on the Canadian scene. No one seems to know quite what it's all about.

Most of the confusion arises from the fact that someone seems to be playing fast and loose with the Governor-General's role in Canadian society. That's easy to do, since constitutional niceties do not normally stir the blood of the electorate.

* * *

Actually, the matter is quite straightforward. The Governor-General is the representative of the Queen in Canada. He is appointed by her as her personal representative. (Theoretically, that is. Actually, he is named by the Prime Minister of Canada, who tells the Queen who to appoint.) But regardless of who appoints him, he is in no way and never has been the representative of the people of Canada. Mr. Michener is an eminent Canadian, who holds the office of Governor-General. He has ably represented his country abroad. But we are not talking about Mr. Michener. We are talking about the institution of Governor-General.

Some people see these official tours of the Governor-

Let's Be Realistic

THE OTTAWA CITIZEN

An Editorial

Let's be realistic. It's not a question of whether, but when, the incumbent monarch of Britain should cease to be recognized formally as head of the Canadian state.

Much as we may love the present Queen and admire her, it does not seem reasonable to suppose that Canadians will want to accept forever a system that requires their head of state to live outside the country.

Yet as long as the Commonwealth remains a valuable bridge and link among diverse people who share certain precious traditions, it will be wise to retain the royal bond at least to the extent of recognizing the monarch as titular head of the Commonwealth.

The solution for Canada is to be approached cautiously rather than rushed—will probably be an appointed head of state, a Canadian who lives in Canada, and a respectful recognition of the hereditary monarch at the apex of the Commonwealth's loose structure.

More important than this is that most Canadians undoubtedly want to keep the enormously valuable body of law, custom and tradition that has given us the parliamentary system. That system, inherited originally from the British, has been elaborated and adapted to the Canadian experience in a federal state.

That is to say, we wish to retain the tradition of a respected but politically powerless head of state, beyond politics, with a politically potent head of government formally beneath him.

The office of governor-general is rapidly evolving in that direction as can be seen in Mr. Michener's recent European tour. He travelled as the Canadian head of state, without qualification. He was accepted as such by foreigners in a way that the Queen could never be.

And why should we call him a president? That word evokes other images in the Canadian psyche because of our permanent closeness to the American system, with its political supremacy as well as formally pre-eminent presidency.

Let us consider a future in which the governor-general—that name will do as well as any since it's our own—will be our head of state officially, as he already is in practical fact.

'Self-Determination' Tricky Catch Phrase

THE GLOBE AND MAIL

An Editorial

Most of the great debate on the resolution of constitutional problems during the New Democratic Party convention were mere sound and fury.

The New Democratic Party, less than any party in Canada today, is representative of Quebec. Its presence in Quebec is small, the presence of Quebec at the convention was small. The subject would probably not have created the storm it did were it not for the artificial tension generated by the Waffle candidate, James Laxer, whose purpose seems rather to divide than to unite either his party or his country.

The resolution cannot mean much because the resolution does not say much. In fact, its approach is typically Canadian: not a resolution at all but a retreat to study by committee.

Self-determination. That is the new phrase to be flogged. Whether the people of Quebec alone should decide their political future or whether people in other parts of Canada should also have a voice. But the principle is not new.

When you get right down to it, self-determination is something every individual Canadian has believed he had all along.

He believes it is his right as an individual, as a member of his group, of his community, of his province, of his country, in all the escalating forms of collectivism which he and others may share.

This feeling of the right to self-determination, however, is all tied up with disciplines and concessions and compromises and responsibilities, so that one individual is not unduly hurt when another or a group of others, asserts a contradicting right to self-determination. There must be such negotiation, such flexibility, in a country where a multitude of minorities would live without obliterating the weakest.

Adversary System

It is dealing with this great concept in a thousand different situations that is the daily business of a democracy.

The way we usually do it is by means of the adversary system, each arguing in his case, each in search of an ideal, each convinced he has a corner on all the wisdom, and with nobody conceding everything to his opponents at the start or winning all his demands at the end.

There were some old union hands at the NDP convention. Would any of them, we wonder, enter into even the most friendly negotiations concerning at the outset that the bargainer across the table could have it his own way, no matter what happened? Would any company, however benevolent, make such a concession either?

We may get a three-day work week in Canada at some point, but the Canadian Manufacturers Association is not going to admit it today. The productivity of labor may be doubled, but the unions are not going to start any negotiations by conceding that as a preliminary to a pay raise.

Most responsible Canadians have in recent years at least become aware of the delicacy and complexity and urgency of establishing a better way of accommodating our racial dualities. But there has also been a growing appreciation that Quebec has a stake in Canada, as well as the rest of Canada having a stake in Quebec. There are no neat geographical lines dividing one Canadian from another.

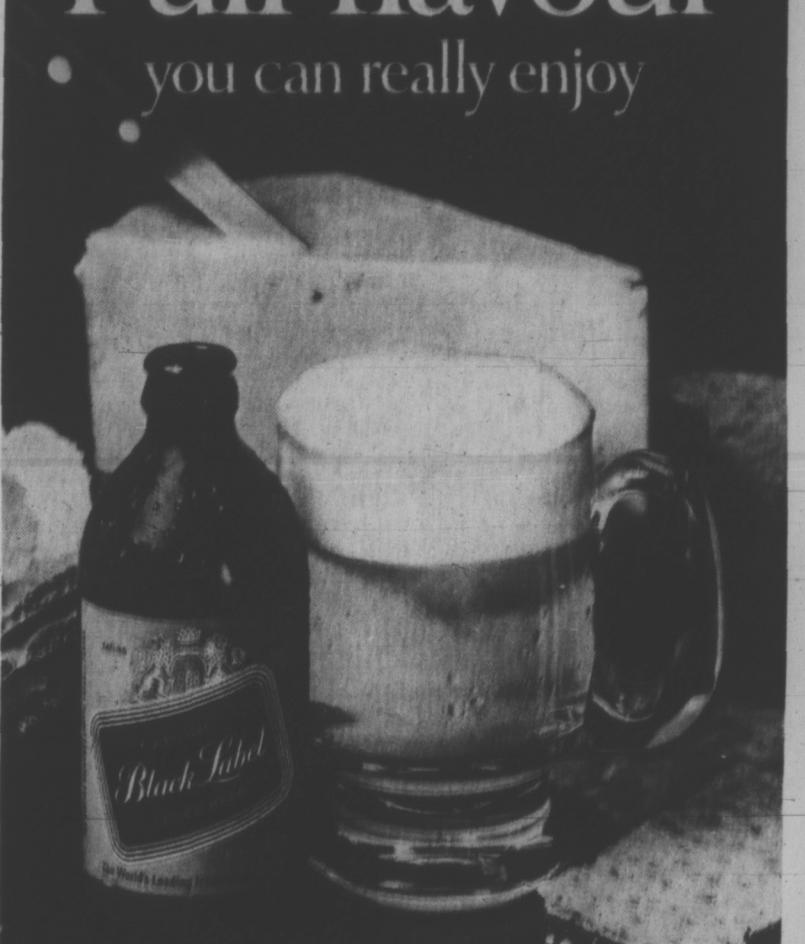

There are no pat solutions either. Just a long, long bargaining table.

Caouette Leadership on Line

By GARRY FAIRBAIRN

OTTAWA (CP) — The newly-revived Social Credit Party of Canada declared today it is once more assuming a national role—with an October convention that may choose a new leader, one younger than 53-year-old Real Caouette.

Gilbert Rondeau, member of Parliament for Shefford and president of the party, told a news conference a leadership convention will be held Oct. 9-11 in Hull, Que., just across the river from Ottawa.

In addition to Mr. Caouette and MP René Matte (Champlain), two persons, both English-speaking and both from outside Quebec, had told him they would run for the leadership. Mr. Rondeau said he will leave it to them to announce their candidacies.

He emphasized that the convention is not intended to rubberstamp Mr. Caouette as national leader nor, on the other hand, to oust him.

At least 2,000 delegates, representing each of Canada's 264 federal constituencies, were expected. Mr. Trudeau said this shows the party's nationwide strength.

The convention agenda was not completed, but Sunday, Oct. 10, was to be devoted to the youth of the party. Nominations would close 25 days before the convention opened. The nominations committee would be composed of the president of each provincial association.

There would be no restrictions on campaign spending by the candidates, said Mr. Rondeau—“what we ask is that they visit all the provinces.”

In addition to the national convention, Social Credit would demonstrate “that we are a national party” by naming candidates in each of the four by-elections scheduled for May 31.

The by-elections will be in the Quebec ridings of Chambly and Trois-Rivières, Brant in Ontario, and Central Nova in Nova Scotia.

Mr. Rondeau was asked whether the leadership convention is the result of a youth movement to remove Real Caouette as leader.

No, he said, but “perhaps there are some young people who want to give Creditistes a chance to vote for someone else.”

The move followed an organizing conference in Ottawa early in April, where 200 delegates from nine provinces decided to resurrect a national Social Credit party.

At that time, a leadership convention tentatively was planned for July.

Flying Aboard Concorde Just Like Conventional Jet

Reuter correspondent Patrick Massey, board the British prototype of the Anglo-French Concorde, is the first reporter to fly in a supersonic airliner.

In the following story he describes the flight.

By PATRICK MASSEY

TOULOUSE, France (Reuter) — Flying through the sound barrier aboard Concorde is like crossing the equator. You don't know it's happening unless someone tells you.

As the first reporter permitted to fly in the needle-nosed jet, I was able to experience today what the airline passenger of the future will feel like flying at twice the speed of sound.

The fact is, he won't know the difference.

The flicker of a needle on the co-pilot's instrument panel was the only sign to show that the aircraft had moved through mach. I into the world of supersonic speed.

For the passenger it was like flying in a conventional jet.

We were travelling in the British Concorde prototype 002 from Fairfield in Gloucestershire to Toulouse. The flight was made so that 002 would be on hand when President Georges Pompidou arrived here this afternoon at the end of his flight in the French prototype 001.

In 002, a space was cleared, behind the batteries of robot-like measuring machines which usually clutter the cabins, and four ordinary airline seats were installed.

A strip of carpet along the floor completed the partial change from workshop to passenger cabin.

At 10:05 a.m. (5:05 a.m. EDT), 002 hurtled forward with a back-gripping jerk along the Fairfield runway, reared its bird-like nose and sprang into the sky at 225 miles an hour.

public airing needed.

Conservationists Seek Inquiry on Land Use Policy

A public inquiry into land use and the leasing of provincial waterfront property for subdivisions is urged by environmentalists and conservationists.

This was the reaction this week to a new government land use policy, intended to tighten controls on the leasing of crown lands for summer homes around lakes and along rivers and creeks.

"This whole damn question of land use should be aired in public," said Elton Anderson, secretary of the Federation of B.C. Naturalists. "There are many burning issues — not only dealing with the leasing of publicly-owned waterfront property but with over-grazing on our range lands."

Anderson said the people of British Columbia should be given a say before a public inquiry on how they wanted their lands used.

"I feel strongly about this and I know many people feel the same way," he added.

The consensus of most people concerned with environment is that the new policy is short-sighted and is not geared to the rapidly expanding population and new problems created by new technical advances.

Realtors on the whole were noncommittal but said the new policy was an improvement on the old.

Under the new regulations governing the leasing of waterfront acreage, leases for summer cottages will only be issued after the various resource departments have been consulted to determine the best use of the land in question.

FOREST LANDS

The regulations also provide for the protection of lakeshores and islands in forest lands.

Rich Careless, president of the Victoria branch of the Sierra Club, said in essence the new policy does not depart from the old of providing Crown property for the enjoyment of the few.

"The government still subscribes to the view that British Columbia has an unlimited supply of waterfront property," he said. "This isn't so. There are over 200 million people in North America."

"People in Toronto today have to drive 200 miles to get to a wilderness area," he added.

Spencer's main argument for dismissal is that when evidence points equally to guilt and innocence it is no evidence of guilt.

The Crown's simplest position is that Robinson must rule that enough facts have been introduced to warrant their consideration for judgment on the charges.

"People come here because of the sense of space," he said. "Yet government policies work to destroy this."

Careless is strongly opposed to the subdivision of crown land on lakeshores, rivers and creeks.

Howard English, a director of the B.C. Wildlife Association, said the new regulations do not guarantee that strips along rivers and creeks would be set aside as public thoroughfares.

"Enough land should be left along rivers for a footpath," he said. "Sportsmen have been fighting for this for years."

Dr. John Harris, a member of the Victoria Outdoor Club conservation committee, said even if a few homes are allowed to alienate crown river frontage, it spoils the river for walkers.

Harris said if leases are to be issued for summer cottages on waterfront construction controls should be imposed.

"If you allow people to build $25,000 homes on leased property, it will be too costly to buy them back," he said.

Conservationists on the whole felt that once crown property is leased, the land is lost for ever to the public.

All were against the alienation of any waterfront on the west coast of Vancouver Island.

Hummel Tax Evasion Trial Adjourned: Dismissal Bid

The tax evasion trial of Victoria lawyer-businessman David Hummel has been adjourned to June 1.

Judge E. F. N. Robinson will then rule on a defence application that all charges be dismissed for lack of evidence.

Defence counsel John Spencer and prosecutor Robert Hutchison argued the motion during most of Wednesday's and all of Thursday's proceedings here.

The complicated nature of prosecution and defence arguments and the large volume of documents led in evidence by the Crown require time for study before a decision of the dismissal application can be reached, Robinson said Thursday.

Before his ruling is given, Robinson will have to read more than 270 items entered by Hutchison since the trial began April 19.

Hummel is charged with evading income taxes on $120,000 and four counts of making false statements on income tax returns.

Yesterday, Hutchison responded to Spencer's motion for dismissal by saying the Crown has shown ample evidence to suggest Hummel deliberately "re-arranged" his affairs to avoid paying taxes.

He suggested this is sufficient to allow the trial to proceed.

Spencer maintains the Crown has failed to show any evidence of intent, and must do so for all charges. He argues that Hutchison's case is "strictly circumstantial."

Hutchison said he does not have to prove intent on the four counts of making false statements on the income tax return. But Hutchison conceded he must show intent on the charge of failing to pay taxes on $120,000.

This, he said, has been sufficiently demonstrated by events in the fall of 1964 when one of Hummel's business partners was bought out and the remainder of the group successfully won rezoning for two projects.

The partner was Michael Warren. And the rezonings were for the Hampshire House Apartments in Oak Bay and the Red Lion Inn in Saanich.

APPLICATION GRANTED

Oak Bay council granted the application for rezoning on Oct. 19, 1964. The following day, Warren was "kicked out" of the group, Hutchison said.

Saanich council approved the zoning for what later became the Red Lion Inn on Nov. 16. The next day, the agreement which defined Warren's price was signed.

Hummel's group included the late William Ostrand and contractor Siegfried Marquardt. The wives of these men also played prominent roles in the business and financial affairs of the group's more than 25 companies.

Hutchison suggests that the timing of the Warren agreement, coming when the group knew that the value of two of their projects would increase immensely now that rezoning had been won, is crucial to indicating intent to avoid paying the taxes.

Another point, is whether the group undervalued Glengarry Private Hospital at the time.

Hutchison also says Hummel's share of profits from stock sales in the Red Lion Inn and Park Royal Holdings Ltd. should have been claimed as income rather than capital gains, because Hummel's behavior indicates the sale was a trading venture.

STOCKS SOLD

Spencer says the stocks were sold to raise money for the group's projects, and netted capital gains, not income.

Another point is whether a $6,600 salary paid to Hummel's wife was, in fact, his income. The Crown says it

"I'm not saying that it will mean that all our constitutional problems will be solved," he said, "but we do want to promote a happy marriage between French and English-speaking Canadians."

Premiers To Decide Rights Bill

MONTREAL (CP) — Canadian premiers meeting in Victoria June 14, 15 and 16 will face "the most thoroughgoing and significant changes" in the Canadian constitution since 1867, Warren Allmand, Liberal member of Parliament for the Montreal riding of Notre-Dame-de-Grace, said Thursday.

Allmand, who has served on the touring parliamentary committee on the constitution, told a Montreal service club that if the premiers accept a resolution, the Bill of Rights would be entrenched in the Canadian constitution. It would broaden its application to include matters under provincial as well as federal jurisdiction.

"Like the U.S. Bill of Rights, it would cover everyone on everything," he said.

Allmand said a fully-Canadian constitution would provide equal language rights across the country and permit all Canadians to communicate in either English or French at all government levels.

"I'm not saying that it will mean that all our constitutional problems will be solved," he said, "but we do want to promote a happy marriage between French and English-speaking Canadians."

SISTERS AGED 9, 11 CHARGED WITH THEFT

CHELYAN, W. Va. (AP) — A chipmunk somewhere in the nearby Campbell's Creek area has a $3,500 nest egg tucked away in its burrow.

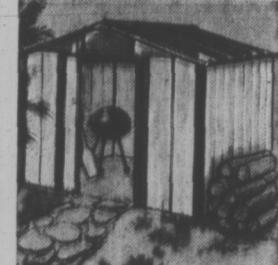

Police have charged two sisters, 9 and 11, with taking $4,000 from a safe at a grocery store. Officers said $500 has been accounted for, but that the girl's brother and a friend hid the remainder under a rock in a chipmunk's burrow.

Now no one can remember which rock the money is under. The store owner is offering a $200 reward to the person who finds the money.

Ontario to Investigate Fees Paid 50 Doctors by OHSIP

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Ontario Health Minister A. B. Lawrence promised Thursday he would investigate about 50 doctors who have charged the Ontario Health Services Insurance Plan the most.

He was replying to Dr. Morton Shulman (NDP-Toronto High Park) who asked in the legislature if some doctors were receiving more than $350,000 a year from OHSIP.

The Newfoundland legislature gave approval in principle to a bill altering procedures for non-voluntary admittance of patients to mental hospitals.

Debate continued in the New Brunswick house on pornography and censorship.

Quebec Curbs Import Eggs

QUEBEC (CP) — The national assembly passed into law late Thursday a bill authorizing the Quebec agricultural marketing board to seize and confiscate eggs imported illegally into the province and placed on the market.

The new act, known as Bill 15, sets fines of $500 for any individual and $1,000 for any corporation found illegally importing eggs into Quebec. Repeated offenders could be fined between $3,000 and $4,000.

The board is authorized to hire special inspectors to ensure that the law is obeyed.

A companion law, Bill 16, on the assembly's agenda when Bill 15 is expected to be given royal assent today, serves roughly the same purpose. It gives the provincial government marketing powers to handle those agricultural products now sold in an uncontrolled manner.

Agriculture Minister Normand Toupin said the two laws were passed in retaliation for Ontario's Bill 10, a similar act against broiler chicken imports into Ontario passed recently.

SURPRISED BY MOVE

Mr. Toupin said he was surprised and disappointed by the Ontario law, primarily because he was under the impression that he had an understood agreement with the Ontario agricultural minister which was broken when Ontario passed Bill 10 last week.

Earlier he denied reports that the Quebec government would establish a border inspection points on the province's frontiers with Ontario and New Brunswick to control illegal egg imports.

During the national assembly debate on Bill 15 a spokesman for the Parti Quebecois placed much of the blame for the "chicken and egg war" on the federal government.

Camille Laurin, house leader of the Parti Quebecois, said the federal government was responsible for the bitterness between provinces concerning the effort to control the poultry trade.

He said Ottawa should have established a firm policy for marketing agricultural products long ago rather than leaving it to the provinces to take the initiative.

URGES NEGOTIATIONS

Remi Paul, Union Nationale house leader, said the problem could be more easily solved by direct negotiations between Quebec and Ontario.

The battle over interprovincial poultry products trade started warming up last May.

A year ago FEDCO, Quebec's egg marketing body, was established by the Quebec Federation of Egg Producers and restricted egg imports to Quebec to 40 per cent of the total provincial market in 1970.

All Western provinces and Nova Scotia passed their own legislation restricting the sale of chickens from outside each province in its local market.

The Supreme Court of Canada is to judge the constitutionality of measures passed by Manitoba and Quebec.

And the Manitoba legislature gave approval in principle to a lottery bill.

At Toronto, Mr. Lawrence said outside the legislature some doctors are getting more than $200,000 a year from OHSIP.

These were gross payments and so did not represent personal income, he said, but on the other hand the figures did not include what doctors were getting through private insurance companies or from additional billing of patients.

Mr. Lawrence said he will give his findings to the Ontario College of Physicians and Surgeons and would make sure he and the college have the legal powers to discipline any doctors whose high billings to OHSIP are not justified.

The mental health bill given second reading in the Newfoundland house would replace outdated existing laws, some passed in 1853.

Under the bill, a person could be detained for one year in hospital on the basis of a certificate signed by one doctor. A separate certificate would be required for each succeeding year of detention.

The new act, known as Bill 15, sets fines of $500 for any individual and $1,000 for any corporation found illegally importing eggs into Quebec. Repeated offenders could be fined between $3,000 and $4,000.

The Supreme Court of Canada is to judge the constitutionality of measures passed by Manitoba and Quebec.

André Robichaud (L-Gloucester) told the New Brunswick legislature that restrictive legislation was not the proper way to deal with pornography in the media.

Mr. Robichaud said education was the key to the problem and suggested greater emphasis be placed on sex education, perhaps starting first with parents.

The lottery to be set up under the Manitoba bill would be similar to the 1970 Manitoba Centennial Lottery. When the bill passes, it is expected there will be three draws in 1971 based on various sporting events.

Black Hawks Go Two Up Following 5-3 Triumph

CHICAGO (CP) — Super sub prefers to let his actions speak.

Lou Angotti, Chicago reserve forward, scored two unassisted goals in the third period Thursday night, propelling the Black Hawks to a 5-3 Stanley Cup win over Montreal Canadiens.

The victory was Chicago's second straight at home to open the best-of-seven National Hockey League final with the series now moving to Montreal for the next two games, Sunday at 11 a.m. PDT and Tuesday at 5 p.m. PDT.

"I don't really know how I got either one," said the 33-year old Toronto native whose ability to play any forward slot has been an added bonus to the Black Hawks efforts this year.

He wasn't even aware he had capitalized on mistakes by usually reliable Montreal defenceman J. C. Tremblay to score the winning and insurance counters of the game.

"I better not say anything," he decided. "It could be me the next time."

Tremblay, coming off one of his best seasons, earlier in the game assisted on Montreal goals by Jacques Lemaire and Peter Mahovlich to set a playoff record 14 for defencemen.

On Angotti's first goal, Tremblay's attempted clearing shot came off the backboards to Angotti, who rifled it past Montreal goalie Ken Dryden.

The score sent Chicago into a 4-2 lead and after Frank Mahovlich's 11th playoff goal had narrowed the gap, Angotti took the puck from Tremblay near the Canadiens' blueline and moved unmolested on Dryden.

Pat's Cut Nasty but Not Serious

Angotti drew two assists—on Bobby Hull's power-play goal to open the game and on Chico Maki's tying score early in the second period. Jim Pappin, who scored the winner in the second overtime period of the first game, put the Hawks ahead 3-2 with his eighth of the playoffs at 13:50 of the middle period.

"I just saw Chico shoot it in . . . and there it was," he said of the first goal. On the second, with just over three minutes remaining, he thought "I was in too close."

Coach Billy Reay praised the overall effort of the club, particularly Angotti whose two goals doubled his previous play-off production.

"You've really got to give the guy credit. There are few players who can come off the bench and play like that. . . . The guys played hard and contributed to this win."

The game may have cost Chicago the services of Pat Stapleton. The stocky defenceman suffered a gashed right cheek when he and Montreal's Rejean Houle collided near the Chicago goal during the second period.

As the two went to the ice, Stapleton fell on Houle's skate. The skate blade slashed the cheek from just below the eye to his mouth. He was taken to the hospital for plastic surgery.

"I don't think it's really serious," said Reay. "But the guy has to live with his looks the rest of his life." He added, explaining the need to have a plastic surgeon look at the cut immediately.

Dryden Cut on Chin by Hard Shot

Stapleton returned to the stadium after the game and did not appear the worse for his experience. He was talking normally with reporters.

Outside the Montreal dressing room, Montreal coach Al MacNeil didn't appear overly distraught by the setback although his players were in a far more subdued mood beside their locker room.

"That's his style," said MacNeil of Tremblay's two costly errors. "When he makes a bad play, it's more glaring. But he makes a lot more good ones than bad."

Dryden, stunned by a Dennis Hull blast after Angotti's second goal, needed four stitches to close the wound on his chin. The shot bounced off his chest protector to his chin, almost tearing the goalie mask from his head.

"Angotti surprised me," said Dryden, who faced 93 Chicago shots in the two games here, including the first that went to 1:11 of the second overtime.

CHARLOTTETOWN (CP) — Charlottetown Islanders have a chance to get even in their best-of-seven Centennial Cup hockey final with Red Deer Rustlers when the teams meet tonight in the fourth game.

Charlottetown right winger Kevin Devine scored two goals while linemate D'Arcy Murphy's tally at 17:04 of the second period proved to be the winner.

The second period provided most of the action for the 2,700 fans at Charlottetown Forum.

Both benches cleared during a second-period brawl in which each team took 10 penalties. It took officials 15 minutes to restore order.

Ken McLash, Mick Girard and Brian Ogilvie scored goals for Red Deer in the first period while Devine had the only Charlottetown tally.

Devine, Allan MacAdam, Murphy and Peter Williams scored for the Islanders in the second period.

Dwayne Bolkowy's goal at the 2:00 mark of the third put Red Deer within one goal of the lead.

Maui-Bound Ketch Provides Sailpast Base

A newly-built 45-foot ketch, destined to race in the 1972 Victoria-Maui race then take off on an around-the-world cruise, will be the saluting base when the Esquimalt Canadian Forces Sailing Association holds its official opening day Sunday.

She is Frank Lane's Eviva and was completed in March, two years after her keel was laid. She's a handsome boat with teak decks, Douglas fir planking from the Cowichan Valley, and accommodation for eight.

Commodore R. V. Henning, base commander of CFB Esquimalt, will be aboard Eviva to take the salute at the sailpast which follows a flag-raising ceremony at 1:30 p.m. others aboard will include Esquimalt Ald. Jack Gourlay and his wife, the commodore of the Royal Victoria Yacht Club and the Turkey Head Sailing Association, and the president of the Elk lake sailing Association.

Once the pomp and ceremony is over, Sailerette skippers and crews will don sailing tags for the Top Dog Pennant race which has become a feature of opening day festivities.

They'll be out in a 48-mile overnight race in the Strait of Juan de Fuca which begins at 5 p.m. Saturday off Gonzales Point. The race committee has set PYA category 1 as safety requirements, which includes carrying an inflatable liferaft, emergency steering and other equipment.

Dennis Woodward's Puff was first overall. After her came John Booth's Umpqua, Steve Merriman's Vandal, Steve Lovric's Trekker, Gerry Porter's Aureola, Rick MacBride's Tahoma, Ron Saunders' Irawaddy, Gerry Howell-Jones' Helix, Stan Cosburn's Wild Thing and Ian Bogman's Sea Fever.

Blacker the Fish — Better the Day for Fishing

STEWART LANG

The Outdoors

Fishermen working waters from Nanaimo north on the east coast of Vancouver Island are finding a bonanza of blueback salmon while their southern-island counterparts are busy hauling in a mixed catch of blues and springs.

Blues feeding on shrimp are rapidly reaching the 3½-pound size in the vicinity of Quathiaski Cove and April Point near Campbell River.

Another up-island spot for the light-tackle angler seeking these young coho is Bates Beach near Courtenay.

Other quantities of blues have been landed near the Red Buoy outside Departure Bay and between Five Fingers and Grey Rocks off Nanaimo.

Closer to home, springs constitute the main catch for fishermen working deep near Bold Bluff in Sansum Narrows and off Crofton.

Springs up to 16 pounds may be found from Willis Point to McKenzie Bay, in Tod Inlet and from Mill Bay to McCurdy Point on the Bamfield side of Saanich Inlet.

Fishing well offshore and deep seems to produce springs while lighter tackle has harvested some of the scattered population of blues.

Goldstream Island waters have produced the same type of returns.

Springs tipping the scales up to 17 pounds and a fair number of blues have been reported near the Deep Cove marker and Patricia Bay.

Flashtails, anchovies and herring strip are serving to catch springs ranging from five to 16 pounds off Trial Island, The Gap and Discovery Light when trolled on the end of "70 to 85 feet of line" and six ounces to 1½ pounds of weight.

Fishermen using 100 feet of line and eight to 10 ounces of weight have been landing springs up to 30 pounds and a smattering of blues near Race Rocks and Bentinck Island while others have been striking it lucky for springs between the Sooke Harbor entrance and Secretary Island.

Continued warm weather is helping dimple the surface of many Island lakes and rivers with the rises of hungry trout.

Best lakes in the vicinity of Victoria have been Elk, Beaver, Prospect, Shawnigan, Kemp and Council.

There was an ant hatch on the Cowichan River around the beginning of this week and the water level was up, but the upper reaches of the river should be in prime condition by the weekend for anglers seeking brown trout.

Prime lakes in the Duncan area have been Somenos, Quamichan and Cusheon on Salt Spring Island.

Other good catches of trout were noted in Sproat Lake, Dixon Lake, McIvor Lake and Lower Campbell Lake.

NIBBLES: A special "Mother's Day" event will initiate the new Puntledge Field archery range of the Courtenay Bowmen. The 15-target range will also be the site of the Vancouver Island outdoor championships, June 26 and 27. The club is also busy preparing an adjacent open-range suitable for FITA (international-style) events. Ducks Unlimited (Canada) reports that waterfowl returning from the south to nest on the prairies will be greeted by water conditions similar to last year... only in the extreme southwestern portion of Manitoba and the southeastern section of Saskatchewan are the ducks and geese likely to find less than optimum water levels in nesting areas... better water conditions exist in the Chilcotin-Cribbo sections of B.C., which was hit hard by drought last year.

Victoria-Saanich Inlet Anglers' Association will start its annual Qualifying Derby on Sunday... weekly prizes and trophies will be awarded until July 4. Fishoff for weekly winners will be July 18... open to VSIAA members and others, anglers need at least a five-pound salmon to qualify... derby ticket must be purchased with each fish weighed in... VSIAA will also hold its Membership Derby on Sunday open to members only.

NOT A CRYSTAL BALL

Young men interested in future are Bob Beauchemin (left) and Sid Murdoch, quarter-final opponents in Times Vancouver Island open golf championships. Making out golf ball to be crystal ball doesn't work, and only juniors remaining in title hunt will have to wait until Sunday's match at Gorge Vale to find out what is in store for them. Beauchemin, 16, is this year's tournament medalist. (Times photo by Ernie Fedoruk)

Trevino Doesn't Trust His Caddy Any Longer

DALLAS (AP) — Lee Trevino was particularly miffed at his caddy Thursday in the opening round of the Byron Nelson Golf Classic in which he fired a two-under par 68, placing the Dallas native two strokes behind leader Jerry McGee.

McGee, 27, is a five-year tour veteran who has never won a tournament. He made $22,000 last year and has pocketed over $26,000 this season, playing without an exemption.

MAKING MISTAKES

"My caddy, who has been with me 2½ years, has been making too many mistakes," Trevino said. "It's getting where I have to walk the yardage off."

Trevino said his caddy, Neal Walker, told him it was 185 yards to the pin on his second shot on the 432-yard par four No. 5.

"It turned out to be only 175 yards," Trevino said.

Trevino, who has never won here, was in a group with five others at 68 on the wind-swept, 7,031-yard Preston Trail Golf Course—Ted Hayes, Bob Stone, John Schieffelin, Ed Sneed and Gay Brewer.

CANADIANS WELL BACK

Jack Nicklaus was tied at 69 with Frank Beard, Masters king Charles Coody, Bob Charles, Chi Chi Rodriguez, Hugh Royer, Gene Little and Homero Blanca. Arnold Palmer was in a group of 11 others at even par 70.

Wayne Vollmer of Vancouver and George Knudson of Toronto each shot 73s while Wilf Ponson of Winnipeg came in with a 77.

Before the Judge

A 17-year-old youth described in court as having been given help from every agency conceivable with little result was sentenced to four months definite in jail and eight months indeterminate for shoplifting.

Daryl Slack, 1120 McClure, had pleaded guilty to taking nine items from the Canada Safeway store at 2635 Quadra April 20.

A security officer testified that she saw the accused pushing a shopping cart around the store with the items and a bag in it.

At one point, she said, he picked up the bag with the items and left the store without paying for them. The items totalled $14.

A 35-year-old serviceman was fined $400 by Judge William Ostler when he pleaded guilty to driving with a blood-alcohol content over .08 per cent.

Barry G. Chapman, of HCMS Provider, court was told, was the driver of a car that went in the ditch at Bellamy and Phelps about 1:45 a.m. Feb. 6.

He had a breathalyzer reading of .27 per cent at the time.

Ostler suspended the man's licence.

Elizabeth A. Thomas, 30, of 3370 Maecrest, was fined $200 in traffic court by Judge Edmond St. Jorre for driving when her blood-alcohol content was over .08 per cent.

St. Jorre prohibited her from driving for three months except on business purposes.

Stanley Blackburn, 39, of 6995 Anglers Lane, Brentwood, was fined $300 by St. Jorre for impaired driving and prohibited from driving for five months except on business.

BUT SCHOOL OFFICIALS NOT-HELMCKEN

Youth 'Interested in Start of B.C.'

Victoria's archivist says he is encouraged by youth's interest in British Columbia's political origins.

But there is little in the province's centennial program this year to tell young people the reason for Confederation or how it came about, Ainslie Helmcken, told the annual meeting of the Women's Canadian Club Wednesday.

He said that when he addressed pupils at numerous schools on the lower mainland the questions on B.C.'s history had come thick and fast.

FUTURE LEADERS

"From this stock, our future leaders are coming. It gives you good heart."

But he hasn't always found the same interest in the school administration, he said.

Helmcken believes he may be the only person left alive who heard the details of B.C. Confederation negotiations from someone who was there.

His grandfather, Dr. John Sebastian Helmcken, was one of three delegates from the province who journeyed to Ottawa to negotiate terms.

The senior Helmcken died in 1920 at age 96. He was a member of the first legislative assembly on Vancouver Island. Later, when the island joined politically with the mainland he was a member of the first combined legislative assembly.

STUDIED JOURNALS

The archivist heard the story from him in 1917 and 1918. Ten years later he was able to study his grandfather's journals on the subject.

Among events which stimulated Confederation was the proposal of a railway link and the death of Governor Frederick Seymour, an opponent to the union.

Helmcken said the railway decision "made" Canada. After terms had been debated and approved by provincial legislators, the delegates left for Ottawa May 10, 1870, almost a century ago to the day.

They travelled by trans-continental railway in the United States and this solidified their resolve. If a railway could be built through the American mountains, then why not through the Canadian Rockies?

Park Residents to Be Queried

Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — The federal government is taking another run at the twin bugbears of perpetual leases and lack of local government in Jasper and Banff townships.

But this time the Ottawa politicians are going to canvass the opinions of the residents in the two communities inside the Rocky Mountain national parks.

J. J. Buchanan (L-London West), parliamentary secretary to Indian Affairs and Northern Development Minister Jean Chretien, will preside at public hearings Monday in Jasper High School and Wednesday in Banff firehall.

UNRELATED

They are not related to last month's hearings on provisional master plans for the mountain parks and also are entirely separate from next year's proposed hearings on master zoning plans for the townships.

Buchanan is undertaking the study for an advisory report he hopes to present to the minister in July on what should be done specifically to meet complaints over leasehold policies and demands for local government.

Environment Or Freedom

OTTAWA (CP) — A British Columbia environmentalist told the Commons fisheries and forestry committee Thursday that in order for society to maintain a viable environment it may have to sacrifice some basic freedoms.

Derrick Mallard, executive director of the Canadian Scientific Pollution and Environment Control Society, SPEC for short, was responding to criticism of a brief presented by his organization on the government's proposed clean-air act.

The brief called for elimination of the automobile in daily urban transport because of the pollution it creates.

"I hope the people there will give me their views. Whether they're for the status quo, an expansion of self-government or complete autonomy by excising the townships from the parks," he said.

FEDERAL MANAGERS

Both towns are managed directly by federal officials although each has a school board and Banff has a citizens' advisory committee.

In Jasper townsite, there are 307 "perpetuals" and 381 42-year leases.

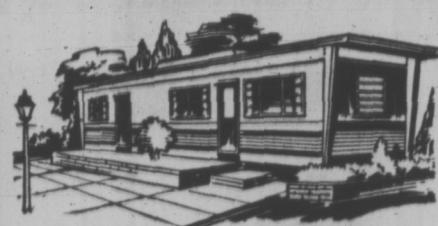

and Chamber of Commerce representatives last December and last month also met businessmen privately in Calgary and Edmonton who own tourist facilities in the parks.

At the present time in Banff there are 675 "perpetual" leases which are mandatorily renewed and 340 42-year leases which may be renewed by agreement or terminated.

In Jasper townsite, there are 307 "perpetuals" and 381 42-year leases.

REMINISCENT of wartime Europe, cars and trucks loaded with personal belongings jam the streets leading out of St. Jean Vianney from homes in danger of crumbling following Tuesday's mudslide were evacuated. (CP Wirephoto)

'WON'T BECOME A GHOST TOWN'

'Roll Up Your Sleeves and Build'

ST. JEAN VIANNEY, Que. (CP) — Mayor Laurent Lavoie called on the residents of this disaster-stricken community Thursday to "roll up our sleeves and build again."

He said at a meeting to launch a national appeal for financial aid that the northern Quebec village is a proud community, and warned "we will not become a ghost town."

But the mayor admitted that there was a "certain panic" among the residents, many of whom saw their neighbors' homes swept into a quarter-mile-long crater, up to 200 feet deep, late Tuesday night.

Latest official estimates are that 31 persons are missing and feared dead after a landslide of 15 million tons of sand and clay that swallowed up 44 homes, a bus and an undetermined number of cars.

Officials now say that four bodies have been pulled from the debris piled at the mouth of the Riviere aux Vases where it meets the Saguenay, about seven miles downstream from St. Jean Vianney, located 115 miles north of Quebec City. Earlier reports said five bodies had been recovered.

MANY LEAVE

The mayor's fear of panic was borne out as many residents voluntarily began to pack their belongings and pull out of the stricken community.

Already, some 130 families of the total 1,300 residents have been evacuated.

Several incidents of looting were reported in the community during the evacuation, but provincial policemen said they knew of no specific incidents.

A QPP spokesman said, however, that 80 men were on duty patrolling the area to respond to any further emergencies.

Many residents vowed never to return to the community, which looks as if a huge crater has been hewn out of the earth at the edge of it.

FAMILY MOVES

Jacynthe Rivolin, 18, helped her family move their belongings from their home near the edge of the giant pit.

"No matter what happens now, my mother refuses to come back," she said. "She's afraid. Can you blame her?"

A neighbor, Joanne Roy, was in tears as she gathered her possessions and packed them into a car.

"My father suffered a heart attack this morning because of this," she said.

Rene Plourde watched the evacuation procedures from the top of a hill.

"I was in one of my friends' house when all of this happened," he said. "It was terrible. It was unbelievable."

"We were about 300 yards from the area. I saw homes go into the hole and I saw the mud just suck them up. It was all over in 15 minutes."

WATCHERS GO

Leo Bourgeois, who came to the village nine years ago, stood at his front window Tuesday night and watched in horror as his eldest son's house tumbled into the abyss of clay and mud.

"He was the first to go, it was the first to fall," he said. "They'll never find Gilles, not at the bottom of that."

About 10 homes slipped away in one gulp about 11:30 p.m. Tuesday and the remainder slid down later as the earth continued to give way.

Mr. Bourgeois, once an enthusiastic president of a local development organization working to attract young married couples to the community, appealed publicly to Premier Robert Bourassa Thursday to declare the village "uninhabitable, a danger zone."

Rescue workers in steel-hulled rowboats used long steel poles to probe debris at the mouth of received a request for aid from the community. He said the government will respect the constitution and not "go over the heads of local authorities" by sending in large amounts of unasked aid.

Premier Bourassa paid a brief visit by helicopter to the region Thursday and told a news conference the government would "have no hesitation bringing in special legislation if it can be useful."

In Ottawa, Prime Minister Trudeau told the Commons that the federal government has not the town had requested the natural resources department to conduct soil inspection in the area.

Mr. Masse told the national assembly he had spoken with Mayor Lavoie and established that the letter in question was addressed to the St. Jean Vianney assessment officer.

Mr. Masse said that four specialists in soil mechanics from the federal government and one from Laval University went to the community Thursday.

"Their role is to decide on the stability of the soil around the zone of the tragedy so as to determine a safety perimeter within which no one will be asked to take chances for a certain length of time."

The minister said the specialists also will decide on the chances of stabilizing the clay field and "thus stop possible further slides."

Geologist Jean-Yves Chagnon, in a report to the resources department, said erosion of the sandy material at the base of

Man, 28, Jailed For Having Cocaine

DUNCAN — A 28-year-old Vancouver man was sentenced Thursday to five years in jail for possession of drugs for the purpose of trafficking.

Lucien Adrien Goyette earlier pleaded not guilty to three counts of trafficking involving cocaine, hashish and LSD.

Court was told Goyette was arrested in Vancouver March 12 as a result of an incident at 6770 Beaumont Ave., Maple Bay, on Feb. 22. Two RCMP constables recovered a bag containing drugs and Goyette's fingerprints were found on packages of cocaine.

Judge Lance Heard told the accused the drug problem in the area is on the increase. Considering Goyette's previous criminal record (which did not involve drugs) and the facts of the case, Heard said under no circumstances could he give a lighter sentence.

Chabot Doubtful Over Sandringham

Prospects for settlement of the seven-month strike at Sandringham Private Hospital were described as poor by Labor Minister Jim Chabot following a meeting Thursday with the president of the hospital's management company.

"Nothing of consequence was resolved," Chabot said in Vancouver after meeting Neil Cook, president of National Nursing Homes Ltd.

Internal Injuries Blamed for Death Of Motorcyclist

A coroner's jury was told Thursday a 16-year-old motorcyclist killed Sunday in a collision with a car died from massive internal injuries.

St. Joseph's Hospital pathologist Dr. William Hay was testing in the death of Ross Fairfield, 945 Runnymede Place.

Diane Daoust, 14, of 968 Balmoral, a passenger on Fairfield's motorcycle, is in good condition today at St. Joseph's with head injuries she received in the crash on the Sooke Road at Jadel Drive.

Driver of the car, was Joseph Tanhauser, 47, of 670 Cartmel Close.

The inquest was adjourned to May 26, 7:30 p.m., in the Law Courts.

Lake Residents To Hold Burning

There'll be a burning at Prospect Lake Community Hall Sunday, May 16, and every member of the community is delighted.

At 3 p.m. former lieutenant-governor George R. Pearkes will light a match and burn the hall's mortgage.

While it was still getting the finishing touches, Pearkes officially opened the hall Nov. 21, 1964. That was the day Prospect Lake District Community Association, instigators of the hall, held its first Silver Bell Carnival.

Since then, the association has held carnivals, auctions, dances and other events to

Entries Invited By Art Gallery For Jury Show

Entries are being accepted by the Art Gallery of Greater Victoria for its 21st annual jury exhibition.

All entries will be on display for one day only, May 12 from 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. Works chosen by the two jurors will be exhibited from May 25 to June 13.

The jurors are Prof. Kenneth Pawala, University of Washington, and Gordon Smith of the University of British Columbia's art department.

Closing date for entries is Wednesday, May 12 at 5 p.m.

Apartment Protesters Ignored

NORTH COWICHAN — Council Wednesday approved construction of a $700,000 three-storey apartment building on Alington Road, immediately north of Duncan.

A 48-name petition from residents opposed the rezoning from single-family to multi-family use. But council decided the complex would give greater land use value if not subdivided for housing.

Stanley Mitchell of Victoria, owner of Rising Enterprises Ltd., agreed to post a $5,000 cash bond, promising the project will be started within six months.

He will be responsible for any expenses that may be incurred to neighboring residents when a larger water main is installed for the development.

FIFTY FOUR LIMITS

Mitchell said the 54-unit, 35-foot high apartment building will be an asset to the community.

He said the 70-foot trees on the 2.85 acres will not be cut down.

The minister also said there are no guidelines under which the government could intervene in the strike of 28 workers who went on strike last September after the hospital management refused to sign a contract with the Canadian Union of Public Employees.

Chabot also said he has no evidence of any lack of care for the 90 patients as a result of the strike and has "indications" from relatives of patients that the standards are high. A full staff of 62 is working at the hospital.

The union is seeking an increase in $1.50 hourly wages and also wants job security.

Chabot said he wasn't optimistic about finding a settlement right from the beginning but had kept his promise to talk with each side in the dispute.

MAN CHARGED IN MURDER

NANAIMO (CP) — Robert Thomas Copeland, 26, was charged Thursday with non-capital murder in the strangulation death of his wife, Barbara Gay Copeland, 24, mother of four.

Her body was found in the couple's Nanaimo home early Thursday.

Copeland was remanded in custody to today.

Chabot said Cook told him that he is not making money at Sandringham because it is not efficient.

Arrested by Busload

BALTIMORE, Md. (AP) — A busload of youngsters was driven to a police station and arrested because a seat was rammed through a window.

Thomas Mancini, 40, driver of the bus, told police the 52 junior high school pupils were fighting before he heard the crash of breaking glass. He drove the bus to the station where the 14- and 17-year-olds were arrested and then released in their parents' custody.

Chabot said Cook told him that he is not making money at Sandringham because it is not efficient.

21 Students Get Trip To Montreal

DUNCAN — Twenty-one Central Vancouver Island students will travel as Young Voyageurs to Montreal during the first week of the summer holidays.

The Grade 11 students will join 26 other B.C. groups and while staying with families in Montreal will take part in activities designed to give them a thorough knowledge of Montreal and neighboring areas.

Island students chosen are: Nanaimo High: Margaret Butta, Margaret Benson, Bonnie Boyd, Stacy Ferstel, Jan Lang, Annette McAuley, Laurel Wright, Lyle Davies, Peter Lemon, Bruce McIntyre, Alan Martin, Dan Maybin, Fred Salevsky, Jim Scott and Gary Wilkes.

Ladysmith High: Roberta Davidson and Kim Hay.

Lake Cowichan High: Sharon Schoor and Kathy Beatch.

Cheminus High: Glenda Lucy and Glen Stensund.

And if licensing was begun,

Witt added, cyclists would be entitled to special considerations like special lanes on city streets.

Ald. Peter Pollen said he would like to see a few more bicycles on the streets and a few less cars. If the city wanted to take revenue from cyclists, why not license walkers at $1 a head and bring in $58,000 a year, he suggested sarcastically.

Pollen ended the conversation by moving to consider the next item of business.

"That's the democratic process," concluded Baird.

Nuclear Plant Urged for Jobs

Nuclear power for Vancouver Island would greatly benefit the economy with minimal damage to the environment, consulting engineer Trevor Davis of North Saanich said Thursday.

A specialist in the design of nuclear power plants, Davis said the new power source would provide "all manner of opportunities in employment, new business and industry" and give the Island "real" secondary industry.

He said the federal government would be willing to pay for a prototype plant on the Island.

Cruelty Charged

MILAN, Italy (AP) — Italian bird-lovers have filed charges of cruelty against organizers of the world pigeon shooting championships opening here soon. The charges are the Bird League cites a 1913 law prohibiting "games or entertainments involving torture to animals." Organizers of the championships, bringing 500 gunners from 13 countries, said: "Pigeon shooting is allowed by law in Italy."

NO SUCH PLANS

Cheap energy is necessary for manufacturing, he said, and that's a commodity the Island doesn't have. B.C. Hydro has suggested a nuclear plant in the Duncan area, but the government has said it has no such plans in the foreseeable future.

Davis said building the plant itself would be a boon to the province's young, electronics and computer industries, and justify the "massive expenditure" on scientific instruction at our universities.

China Policy Worries Aussies

By VINCENT MATTHEWS

CANBERRA (CP) — The Australian government is in serious trouble over its China policy and is struggling, so far unsuccessfully, to extricate itself from the inflexible attitudes of the past.

As other nations make significant moves towards closer relations with the Peking government, Australian Prime Minister William McMahon, in his first major public speech since becoming leader on March 10, stressed that it was his government's "paramount" objective to keep Nationalist China in the United Nations.

Foreign Minister Leslie Bury, only days earlier, had told Parliament that Australia had to be "sensitive to change" in its attitudes to China, which he referred to throughout his statement as "the People's Republic."

McMahon talked instead of "continental" China and "Taiwan" China and laid down conditions that Peking must conform to before being admitted to the UN. These included assurances that the Chinese would let their neighbors determine their own futures.

What puts McMahon in an embarrassing position is that he admitted in Parliament that, according to a diplomatic message received from the British embassy in Peking, the Chinese have decided not to buy any more Australian wheat "for political reasons."

SHOCKS PEOPLE

This disclosure—although the government has tried to discount its reliability—shocked many Australians who had assumed they could be nasty to the Chinese politically while making millions out of trading with them.

Canada, which recognized China last fall, signed a $160 million one-year contract with the Chinese, the biggest short-term wheat export contract ever negotiated by China.

For years, Australia has sold as much as one-third of its wheat crop to the Chinese and last year's deal was worth more than $100 million.

Australia's wheat growers have become rich on the strength of the China trade and there is widespread concern among them and other export businessmen.

For 22 years, the Liberal-Country party coalition has maintained its own "cold war" against China, rejecting any suggestion of diplomatic recognition of Peking or support for its seating in the UN.

Its attitude was summed up by former foreign minister Sir Paul Hasluck, who likened China to a dog that had to be trained not to bite if it could be trusted.

At election times, Liberal and Country party candidates have campaigned successfully on the warning that the Chinese were warlike and dangerous and were sweeping south towards Australia.

CALLED "SOFT"

The claim was that the opposition Labor Party was "soft" on communism and would not defend the Australian people from the threatening Chinese as would the government.

The Labor party has maintained a policy of recognition of China and its admission to the United Nations.

Political Imbalance By CBC Seen

OTTAWA (CP) — State Secretary Gérard Pelletier has agreed to tell the CBC to give other political parties in Canada at least as much attention as the separatist Parti Québécois.

He was replying in the Commons Wednesday to Social Credit Leader Réal Caouette and said he was struck as Mr. Caouette had been by some figures on the matter.

Mr. Pelletier, who reports to Parliament for the CBC, disclosed that Radio-Canada, French-language network of the corporation, gave five hours and five minutes television and radio coverage to the PQ convention in February.

Radio-Canada had given 40 minutes' coverage, none on television, to the Social Credit convention in Quebec in March.

Thirty CBC technicians had worked on the PQ convention, one on the Social Credit meeting.

Red Cross Grant

TORONTO (CP) — The Canadian Red Cross Society has authorized a cash grant of $10,000 to aid the Indian Red Cross in caring for refugees from the civil war in East Pakistan. The announcement followed an appeal from the League of Red Cross Societies which stated there are approximately one million refugees sheltered in camps along the 2,500 miles of the East Pakistan frontier.

TUNA SANDWICH BROIL

For four servings, arrange 4 halves of toasted hot dog or burger buns on foil-lined cookie pan. Top buns with contents of 6½-oz. can chunk light tuna. Garnish with pimento or green pepper strips. Sprinkle with crushed potato chips and grated Cheddar cheese. Broil about 5 inches below heat until cheese is melted. Serve immediately for an evening snack or noon hour luncheon dish.

COTTAGE CHEESE SOUFFLE

(A Vegetarian Recipe)

2 eggs separated
2 cups cottage cheese
1 small onion
2 tablespoons vegetable oil
Salt to taste
Saute the finely chopped onion in vegetable oil. Beat egg yolks and add cottage cheese and salt. Add stiffly beaten egg whites. Bake in moderate oven until eggs are done. Serve with cream or parsley sauce.

HEALTH CARAMELS

(A Vegetarian Recipe)

Take equal parts of raisins, figs and dates or prunes. Wash thoroughly. Put through mincer. Bind together with peanut butter or shredded coconut with a little honey. This mixture should be kneaded and thoroughly mixed. Press into flat dish, let stand overnight, cut into squares and wrap in waxed paper.

Pennington's

DEAR ABBY: I once read in your column where a man had been injured in the war and became sterile, and he asked you to find him a woman with a ready-made family. I have the same request. I want a man with a family. I am not sterile. My problem is my looks. I am extremely fat. I am 18 years old and weigh about 250 pounds. Don't tell me to see a doctor and lose weight. I've been all through that without success.

I have never been kissed on a date, so don't get the idea that I am a pregnant girl looking for some guy to marry her.

I love children and need some to give my love to. I can cook and sew and keep house better than any woman I know. I've lived on farms and in the city, so it doesn't matter where I live. I don't care if the man wants love or not. If he doesn't, I won't bother him. If he does, I have plenty to give him.

I insist on marriage and will promise to love and cherish my children as if they were my own. I prefer an older man, but it really doesn't matter. Sign me—Ready, Willing and Needy.

DEAR GRANDMA: You obviously have very little self-esteem — because you are fat. You are willing to marry any man who needs a cook, housekeeper and substitute mother, but is no prize himself, because you don't consider yourself a prize either. You could be wrong. Fat girls who have less to offer than you are getting married every day to men who really love them.

Before agreeing, at age 18, to spend the rest of your life with just any man in return for your services, get some counselling from your local mental health clinic. You will thank me for sending you there.

DEAR ABBY: After 36 years, Grandpa has jumped the fence. When I found out about it and told him I knew, he went to pieces. He has been bemoaning over backwards to make it up to me ever since. I have lost all respect for him and will never be able to trust him again.

I don't want a divorce, but it makes me sick to look at him, never mind sleeping with him! Can you give me a word of encouragement to help me go on? I am broken-hearted.—Grandma.

DEAR GRANDMA: Time heals all wounds. (And sometimes wounds all heels.) This is not the end of the world. Have you never done a deed which you later regretted? Have you never needed to be forgiven? Answer these questions honestly, then concentrate on some of the good things. Grandpa has done throughout the years.

DEAR ABBY: I read about Alice who rode to school every morning between two guys. She wanted to know what to do about one guy who tried to "feel her up" under her sweater. You told her to knock him on the noggin with her loaded lunch bucket.

I'm reminded of a true story: In 1915, two brothers lived on a farm in Oregon. Their parents secured the services of a plump, fun-loving new hired girl. The boys would take her sleigh-riding in their dad's new cutter. "Susie" (I'll call her) always sat in the middle and seemed to enjoy the ride.

There was always a certain amount of horseplay, and on this one occasion one brother approached Susie from one direction, and at exactly the same moment, the other brother approached her from the other side. Much to their surprise, their hands met! There was a dead silence. Then the brothers shook hands, and all three of them nearly died laughing.—No Name, Naturally.

Musicians Fight to Save 'Distant Thunder'

By IAN MacLEOD

LONDON (CP) — Marcel Dupré, the world-famous organist, described it as "the finest organ in Europe." Henry Willis regarded it as the culmination of his life's work and master violinist Yehudi Menuhin says it ought to be "one of the prides of England." Nevertheless, the Great Organ no longer casts its gigantic shadow through London's Alexandra Palace, itself a masterpiece in architecture.

Both organ and palace lie in deplorable ruin, doomed by redevelopment plans.

The imminent threat to the Great Organ has awakened fierce protest among prominent musicians.

Yehudi Menuhin sees the organ "not only as an achievement of workmanship; it also stands for a whole tradition. It would be a disgrace for this organ not to be restored."

But to the layman, to the Greater London Council who act as trustees to the palace and the organ, things look different.

After all, there are grand Willis organs, bigger than the Great Organ, at Liverpool and in St. Paul's Cathedral and other Willis masterpieces in cathedrals and prominent concert halls throughout Britain and the world.

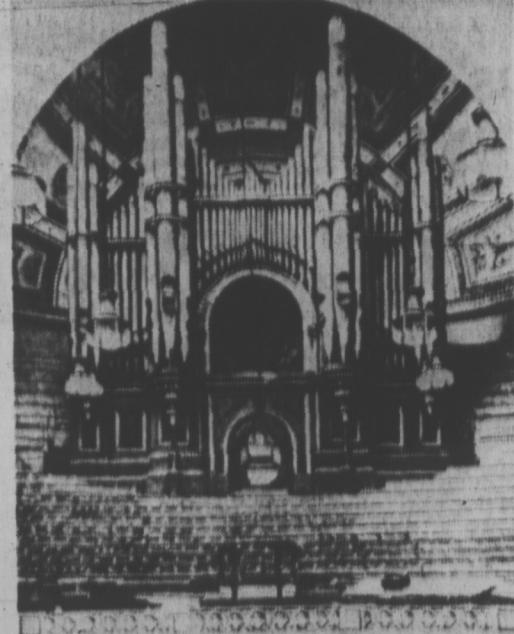

Peter Hamblin, a master organ-builder working under Henry Willis IV, the great-grandson, of the firm's founder, explained the urgency of the Great Organ restoration appeal.

"To match the perfect

"The Great Organ inside

Alexandra Palace was, and still could be, the nearest thing to the organ builder's dream."

In full bloom the Great Organ was a magnificent instrument. More than 100 feet high with 139 registers in all, it dominated all its contemporaries.

The bass section alone, with four 32-foot pipes two feet square internally built of thick seasoned pine, sounded a bottom note one octave lower than the bass C on a piano. The effect was one of distant thunder, Hamblin recalled.

But since it was unveiled in 1873, the organ's history has been marked by huge successes and total disasters.

Gutted by accidental fire just two weeks after its debut, it was quickly rebuilt by Henry Willis. The new Great Organ, like its short-lived predecessor, became the centre of European organ music at the end of the 19th century.

Thousands flocked to hear the unknown student G. D. Cunningham brilliantly mastering the compositions of Beethoven's symphonies and Tchaikovsky's 1812 Overture, backed by huge symphony orchestras.

With the outbreak of the First World War, Cunningham's audiences were the last to hear the Great Organ for 15 years. The palace was turned into a prison camp and only in 1922, four years after the war, Henry Willis II discovered that a handful of uniformed vandals had broken into the organ, destroying its internal mechanisms.

Henry Willis III, then the head of the firm, undertook the mammoth task of replacing more than 7,000 pipes at a cost of $8,000 nearly $40,000 at the exchange rate then prevailing and thus another glorious decade of organ music began in 1930.

Disaster again hit the Great Organ during the Second World War when a bomb dislodged part of the wall above the giant instrument, exposing it to the weather. In 1946 the drenched and rotting pipes were stored in a back room of Alexandra Palace where they lie in a neglected leisure and sports centre.

As trustees, the Greater London Council is unlikely to provide the $70,000 needed to restore the organ. It has plans for demolishing Alexandra Palace and the Great Organ to make way for a leisure and sports centre.

Reginald Marks, a solicitor and chairman of the council's Alexandra Palace Board, outlined his side of the argument.

"I respect the opinion of everyone trying to save the Great Organ but they haven't got to find the money to preserve it ... the public has."

Now in ruin, the Great Organ is doomed by redevelopment plans. Disaster hit during the Second World War when a bomb dislodged part of the wall of the Alexandra Palace, exposing the organ to the weather. The missing pipes are stored in a back room. (CP Photo.)

Communist Candidate Wins Council Grant

TORONTO (CP) — A Toronto woman, who has been a Communist party candidate in federal and municipal elections, says she will use a $3,500 grant from the Canada Council to continue her studies of Marxist theory.

Philipine Clarke, 46, said in an interview she will enrol in the second year of a PhD program in political science at the University of Toronto next fall.

Mr. Clarke said she is writing a thesis which will argue that Canadian Marxists no longer "repeat by rote what Karl Marx said, without an analysis of how the theory applies to Canada's circumstances."

Mrs. Clarke, who obtained a $1,500 doctoral grant from the Ontario government during the last academic year, was one of 1,030 winners selected by the Canada Council from among 3,070 applicants for 1971 doctoral fellowships.

The tea will be officially opened by F. Lloyd Bell, the hospital administrator.

Items for sale will include sewing, hand knitted articles, gifts, attic treasures and home cooking. Proceeds from the sale will be used to purchase a blood analyser for the hospital laboratory.

The Canadian Scottish Regiment (Princess Mary's) will hold a ball May 29 as part of Victoria Day celebrations.

Called the Fort Victoria Military Ball, it will be open to the public. It will be held in the Bay Street Armory from 9 p.m. to 1:30 a.m.

The 12-piece Naden Dance Band will play and plans have been made for a floor show at 11 p.m., which the organizers hope will feature native Indian dances as well as the pipes and drums.

A buffet dinner will be served throughout the evening.

To maintain the centennial theme, it will be a costume ball, but the ball committee stresses that there is no need to spend large amounts of money on period costumes.

placed on political rights not only, as it was spelled out by delegates from Norway, "because it was a good thing but also because only through politics could women do their duty as citizens."

By pooling the interest of women's organizations, Sweden promptly reported doubling the number of women in parliament. That was back in 1937 and Sweden continues well in the fore in feminist reforms. The national federation there recently went on record opposing tax concessions to any husband whose wife stays at home when she is "fit to work."

Through efforts of the French federation that country granted property rights to women in 1965. The Austrian federation has been assisting in gathering facts on women's role in social and economic affairs and the Italian federation recently concluded a study on the country's tax system in order to recommend reforms.

MAIN PROJECTS

South African women having gained right to their own bank accounts now are considering the importance of women in the economy.

Main projects of Nigeria's federation, lead by Chief Ayo Manuwa, are care of war orphans and education in developing countries. Costa Rica is sponsoring adult education programs. Haiti recently granted 12 scholarships and participated in a labor seminar. Pakistan has opened a hostel for working women in Dacca and gives management and business training to girls in Dacca, Karachi and Lahore.

On this continent, Canada and the United States have both organized talent banks of highly qualified women to be recommended for appointment to policy-making positions.

In the United States a theme "Era of Responsibility" was recently inaugurated with programs on environment, drug control, crime prevention among many others. In Canada, tax reforms and pollution control have been among major studies in the past two years.

Looking toward an era of organ transplants, a United Kingdom federation resolution was endorsed at the last IFBPW congress in London, England. In it medical bodies and governments were urged to establish and conform to specific and accepted definitions of death and to establish a co-ordinating office to accept donor recipients.

Historic Group
To Meet Here

The 15-member Historic Sites and Monuments Board of Canada will visit Fort Rodd Hill and Craigflower Manor on May 26.

The visit precedes an annual meeting to be held in Victoria May 27 to 28.

The board, headed by Allan R. Turner, is composed of representatives from all provinces. Historian James Nesbitt represents British Columbia.

Peter H. Bennett, secretary, is also assistant director of the National Historic Parks Branch.

Blows Self Up
RODEZ, France (Reuters)—A man blew himself to death in a monastery by lighting a stick of dynamite in his mouth, police reported. The charge was so powerful it destroyed part of the monastery and damaged a neighboring building site. police named the man as 26-year-old Andre Richeteau and said he killed himself following a quarrel with his girl-friend.IN GOLD CROSS

Birth Control Devices, Information To Be Available to Poor—Turner

By KEN KELLY

Canadian Press Science Writer

OTTAWA (CP) — The rich get richer and the poor get harder, as the saying goes.

Health minister John Munro says he wants to change the final words so that the poor get an equal chance with the rich to obtain family planning information and birth control devices.

"Family planning information has been available for years but the higher income groups had accessibility to it more than those with lower incomes," he said after giving the Commons details Thursday of the federal program.

"People should have an opportunity to plan their family as they wish to exercise it."

The program will emphasize information to the low income groups."

WANTS CONFERENCE

Mr. Munro told the Commons he would like to see a national conference held next year to strengthen efforts of federal and provincial governments, professional associations, citizen groups and other organizations.

He announced a $100,000 grant to the Family Planning Federation of Canada to help extend its activities throughout Canada. The money is to be used for information programs and to spread federation branches.

His announcement met with a general acclaim from party spokesmen in the Commons except for the Social Crediters, who demanded Mr. Munro resign.

Gilbert Rondeau (SC—Shefford) said Mr. Munro would destroy the family. Outside the Commons, he said Mr. Munro was putting the state into the bedrooms of the nation.

WILL HELP PROVINCES

"Obviously nonsense," retorted Mr. Munro.

While the main federal effort will be in information to the public and professionals and in training personnel for organizing clinics, help will be available as in the past to provinces that want to distribute birth control devices.

If a province or municipality distributes such devices under the Canada Assistance Plan, Ottawa will share half the cost of such a welfare program.

Where provinces decide that

Gagliardi to Talk To Rest Homes

A meeting between Rehabilitation Minister Phil Gagliardi and representatives of B.C. rest home operators has been set for 1:30 p.m. Monday.

Financial problems facing the rest homes will be discussed at the meeting, said John Hanrahan, vice-president of the rest homes association.

Eviction of welfare recipients of the homes has been threatened by the operators if payments are not increased.

Buchart Gardens presents "SPRINGTIME". A flower show especially for Mother. Beautiful flowers, gorgeous gardens and "Mom" just seem to go together. Plan now! Make Mother's Day her happiest!

Developed from an abandoned cement quarry over 65 years ago, the gardens have become one of the most admired, most talked-about, written-about showplaces in the world. At a peak of spring loveliness never surpassed... you should see them now. Growing in grandeur year after year! Open every day 9 a.m. to 6:30 p.m.

Time your visit to enjoy a delicious lunch or afternoon tea, served every day 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. in the Flower Restaurant. Continuous coffee bar service. Fascinating Seed and Gift Shop.

PING-PONG AT PEACE TALKS?

PARIS (UPI) — An unidentified man tried in vain today to deliver a ping-pong table, rackets and balls from someone in the United States to the 112th session of the deadlocked Paris peace talks.

Police refused entry to the conference hall grounds of a small truck carrying the gift. The driver declined to identify himself or to say who sent the equipment.

May Opens Season for Broom

By HILDA BEASTALL

May is the opening month of the broom season. The first of this enormous family were already showing a little color by the end of April, and it will be October when the last of the family fades. This is a span of almost half a year, so there should be no surprise when we discover the name broom is applied to three genera: Cytisus, Genista and Spartium.

Together their sizes and habits range from the tiny compact mounds to wide-spreading creeping mats; gracefully drooping small shrubs to stiffly upright; and from arching six-foot masses to small trees of 10 to 20 feet.

The flowers on all these various kinds take the same form—they are what we call "typical pea flowers." They each have a standard, wings and a keel; though yellow is a dominant color, certain hybrids are bronze, orange-red, pink, buff, dark red, pale cream or deep gold.

Just now the two cultivated brooms seen in profusion in public plantings are Cytisus kewensis, a rather low-growing hybrid of pale cream, and C. praecox, a species of the same shade but three to four feet in height.

When these shrubs are blooming, not a speck of green branch can be seen. The effect at night is of pale moonlight—quite enchanting among dark-leaved shrubs.

The clue to having these plants decorative all year is to shear them of the old flower stems the same week as they fade.

Almost instantly the new shoots begin growing, adding their soft young green to the summer garden picture. The following spring all these new shoots bear blooms.

Brooms are ideally suited to many gardens. They will grow in rather poor gravelly soil. They take kindly to sloping banks; have no objection to winds nor to salt water spray.

Once established, brooms dislike being moved, therefore are always sold as rather small plants in containers, but once planted out they grow quickly. Rate of growth depends on the promptness in removal of the faded flower stems in early spring.

They must have long periods of sunshine but do not appreciate a richly manured soil. Nor must they be given fertilizers in any form.

Other types of brooms will be seen as inhabitants of carefully designed alpine gardens. The taller gaily-colored hybrids will flower later in May into June; while Apteria juncea (the Spanish broom) continues through summer until frost.

Look for these and the larger-growing brooms in July and August.

KARPIN ON BRIDGE

By FRED KARPIN

Today's deal features good play by both the South declarer and the East defender. As must be the case in such a situation, there can be but one winner. All the loser can do is to take solace in the knowledge that he played correctly. The hand arose in an all-expert game. Neither side was vulnerable. South deals.

The bidding:

South West North East

1 NT Pass 3 NT Pass

Pass Pass

Opening lead: Five of ♠.

East put up his nine of hearts on West's opening lead and South captured the trick with his queen. The normal tendency at this point would be to lead the jack of diamonds and take the finesse. Had South done this, East would have won the trick with his king. He would then have returned to South's ace. West's heart suit would now be established.

All declarer could now make would be eight tricks: two hearts, four diamonds, and two clubs.

But our declarer had other ideas. At trick two, he entered dummy via the ace of clubs. He next led the board's singleton spade. Had East played low on this lead, the ten-spot would have been a winner. Having "stolen" this trick, declarer would then have conceded a diamond trick to East's king. He would now have his contracted-for nine tricks: one spade, two hearts, four diamonds, and two clubs.

But East did not play a low spade on the lead of dummy's ten. Instead, he put up the ace of spades and played back a heart, driving out South's ace. And, once again, West's heart suit was established.

South then led his jack of diamonds, with the hope that West possessed the king. When West followed suit with the deuce, dummy's nine was played. East won the trick with his king, and returned his remaining heart. West now cashed three heart tricks, to inflict a one-trick set on declarer.

It should be pointed out that declarer made a fine play when, at trick two, he entered dummy via the club ace to lead the ten of spades. Had he, instead, led the king of spades from his own hand at trick two, every East player in the world would have taken the king with his ace. By playing the hand as he did, there was an excellent chance that if East possessed the spade ace, he would not capture dummy's ten. Unfortunately for declarer, however, East rose to the occasion.

Steve examined the old bill. "I never looked at the serial number, but I guess 4321 is quite a special ending," he said. "Is that what you mean?"

"Partly, Dad," replied Mike. "But there's something else. 5574321 is a perfect square, the square of 2361. How many other perfect squares of seven digits do you think can end with 4321?"

What do you say?"

Axis Students Seek Redress

Staff members of the Mount Douglas Senior Secondary student newspaper the Axis are attempting to bring pressure to bear on the administration to pay printing costs of a recent edition which was confiscated and burned.

Students today were invited to sign ballots containing the following statement:

"I (name), a student, feel the burning of the Axis was a repressive and unjust action on the part of the administration, and I would like to see school officials pay for the reprinting of the paper."

The ballots were to be collected and counted by Axis staff members, and no signatures were to be revealed to the administration.

About 690 out of 700 copies of the paper were destroyed just before Easter holidays by principal Jack Lowther. Lowther later received support for his action from the students' council and teachers.

In a statement to the Times, Lowther said the main reason for his actions were the students had bypassed a censor committee composed of three teachers and three students, and that distribution of the newspaper outside the school would have angered parents.

Axie editor Richard Whitehouse said today, printing costs for the edition came to $188. Whitehouse said five of the six censor committee members were notified the copy was ready, but that they failed to read it before it went to the printer.

Whitehouse said the students and the students' council don't agree on the merits of the Axis. Following publication of two earlier issues, the students' council opposed expenditure of further funds for the third edition.

However the students voted in favor of another edition in a special referendum.

Lowther said it is the responsibility of the editors to make sure the newspaper contents are read by the censors before they go to press.

Closure Saturday On Sooke Road

Sooke Road will be closed from 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Saturday between Gillespie and Happy Valley roads, the highway department announced.

A detour, which will be marked by signs, will add about 10 or 15 minutes to the travel time.

CHABOT 'ANNOYS' WOMEN STRIKERS

Leaders of the Sandringham Private Hospital strike are heading for another confrontation with hospital management as a result of Labor Minister James Chabot's statement that the provincial government will not intervene in the seven-month-old conflict.

Resumption of round-the-clock picketing may be one of several new tactics to force the government to intervene, Alex Markides, Island representative for the Canadian Union of Public Employees, said today.

Markides would not say whether an attempt will be made to shut the hospital down, as in March, but he said: "He's very gullible to be sold that bill of goods by Cook because all he has to do is go down and look at National Nursing Home's books to see their line of development."

AR BUTUS TOP BAND

VANCOUVER (CP) — Three British Columbia high school bands and three choirs are to be presented with handcarved totems tonight for placing first in the first B.C. Bands and Choirs Championship.

The awards will be made by Queen Elizabeth at a concert in the Pacific Coliseum.

The Arbutus Junior Secondary School Band from Victoria won its class in the championships this week at the University of B.C. The award for the best junior secondary school choir went to West Vancouver Junior High.

The Burnaby Central Senior High School band was chosen the best senior high school band, and the John Oliver school choir won in its category as the best senior high school choir.

The trophy for the best community band goes to the New Westminster and District Concert Band and the best community choir award goes to the Gallery Singers of Vancouver.

Dr. J. K. English, the coordinating chairman of the competition, said 30 choirs and 20 bands from throughout B.C. took part in the competition.

Win-War Corps Comes In As End-War Group Leaves

Times News Services

WASHINGTON — As the peace people faded in retreat from the streets of the U.S. Capitol today, Rev. Carl McIntire and his Bible-carrying cohorts were warming up for Saturday's planned win-the-war march to the Washington Monument.

The protesters for peace, their design to stop the war in Vietnam by stopping the government frustrated but not abandoned, vowed to return.

"This country is going to have to deal with us," said demonstration organizer Renie Davis. "It's not enough to put us all in jail because we're all willing to go to jail and stay there to end the war."

His supporters had faltered against the government's overwhelming and well-prepared police and military power. Arrested by the thousands, they ran out of bodies.

SECOND MARCH

The McIntire-sponsored march for a military victory, his second here in six months, follows three weeks of anti-war demonstrations. Tonight, to warm up for the march, McIntire plans a service on the steps of Congress.

HYDRO TOWER SABOTAGED

AGASSIZ (CP) — Police said Thursday night a man-made explosion damaged a B.C. Hydro transmission tower near here, sending a 360,000-volt power line plunging into the Fraser River.

The explosion partially collapsed the tower about half a mile south of the Agassiz-Rosedale bridge. Alternative power lines automatically took up the power load and there was no interruption in service.

RCMP said the explosion was man-made but were unable to find any evidence as to the type of explosive used.

The damage was first reported by tugboat crews who found a conductor in the river. The Fraser River.

By JUDY CURRIE

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Royal Marines, white with helmets reflecting the moonlight, beat a ceremonial retreat Thursday night to bring to a close the fourth full day of the royal tour of British Columbia.

The nearly 200 guests at a reception on the royal yacht Britannia lined the railings of the vessel to watch the impressive ceremonial slow march along a darkened dock.

The evening drew to a close with the sunset ceremony and the lowering of the Canadian flag and the white ensign of the Royal navy.

The Royal Family returned to Vancouver from a two-day tour of the British Columbia interior Thursday evening to entertain 40 guests at a private dinner on the yacht, and 160 more at a reception which followed.

The reception was on the deck of the Queen's yacht, covered with a red and white striped awning for the occasion.

Among those present were many civic leaders, including mayors of the Greater Vancouver municipalities, provincial and federal government figures.

Members of the Vancouver and Victoria business community were present, as were people like skier Nancy Greene Raine, Chief Dan George, and Jana Jorgenson, Miss Teen Canada 1970.

Oil Route Speech Queried

Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Prime Minister Pierre Elliot Trudeau today told the Commons he would examine the speech made Thursday by Energy, Mines and Resources Deputy Minister Jack Austin in Anchorage, Alaska, to determine if it needed cabinet clarification.

He was replying to questions by Tom Barnett (NDP-Cornwall-Albert) who expressed concern that Austin had declared Ottawa was prepared to accept the proposed tanker route for Alaska and oil if the U.S. gave assurances, precautionary measures would be taken to protect the Canadian west coast from pollution damage.

"I am not aware of that statement," Trudeau replied.

Barnett rephrased his question to ask whether Canada has officially indicated to the U.S. the terms and conditions which this country feels would be acceptable for the establishment of an oil tanker route on the Pacific between Alaska and other states of the U.S."

The prime minister replied he was "rather sure" Canadian officials had not done so because Ottawa had no legal right to tell the U.S. how it can move oil on the high seas.

Text of Austin's speech to U.S. oil engineers in Alaska Thursday said Canada would accept the U.S. decision on either route.

SHARP DIRECTION

Sharp has been directing with Washington about the proposed Alaskan pipelinetanker route which he personally considered it at a threat to B.C. lower mainland waters.

He was attacked earlier this week by opposition MPs for not ordering the Canadian delegation last Monday in Washington to demand abandonment of the proposal instead of asking about safety features.

Neither energy, Mines and Resources Minister J. J. Greene nor external Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp were in the Commons and the prime minister did not indicate which one he would choose.

MINOR PROBLEM

However, Austin added the northern oil route controversy was a minor problem in comparison with the whole question of future energy policies in both countries.

He said he was certain the sheer size of the total energy problem would result in both countries agreeing on a "balance of objectives" of mutual advantage in oil, gas and all energy resource development and use — apparently a euphemism on the controversial "continental energy" concept.

W. Germany Poised To Let Mark Float

BONN (CP) — Economics Minister Karl Schiller won wide cabinet support today for his proposal to unilaterally float the West German mark if a Common Market meeting in Brussels Saturday cannot agree on joint action to halt the massive U.S. dollar inflow into Europe.

Government spokesman Conrad Ahlers indicated this to reporters as the cabinet broke up for lunch before continuing its deliberations on a broad program of external and internal economic stabilization measures to deal with the dollar crisis.

Ahlers said the cabinet spent most of the morning discussing proposals to float the mark. He gave no details but said, in answer to questions, that its members had been "overwhelmingly unanimous" on the issue.

Earlier, informed sources said Schiller had proposed to the cabinet that the mark should be floated unless Saturday's meeting of the Common Market's council of ministers in Brussels agreed to stop the U.S. dollar flow by joint European measures that are in line with "free market economy" principles.

SEEKS OWN LEVEL

This would mean that instead of being fixed to an upper and lower exchange rate against the U.S. dollar as at present, it would be released and allowed to find its own level on foreign currency markets.

Such a move could be tantamount to secession. The mark was floated for nearly four weeks in October, 1969, before being revalued by 9.99 per cent.

The government's five-man council of independent economic advisers said in a report they published today favoring a floating that it would probably lead to an increase in the value of the mark against foreign currencies.

The council, known here as "the five wise men," said they had proposed the floating to Schiller at a meeting Thursday on the assumption that the six Common Market partners would be unable to

HELP FOR HOME BUYERS

OTTAWA (CP) — The government is seeking agreements with the provinces to provide interest-rate rebates to house-buyers, Robert Andras, minister responsible for housing, told the Commons today.

He said Quebec had already agreed to make three-per-cent interest rebates to lower the cost of housing and other similar agreements were being discussed.

Under the plan, the interest on loans for housing would be partially paid by the provincial government. It applies to purchasers with low incomes.

Adoption Supply Suddenly Goes

Trend to More Unwed Mothers, Abortions

By DON VIPOND

There are 20 families in Greater Victoria waiting to day to adopt babies. For them the stork is nowhere in sight. A year ago there were only two or three families waiting and they didn't have to wait long, three or four months from application through interviews and the rest of the case study to instant family. At the moment the Family and Children's Service knows of only 15 babies who may be available for adoption between now and October. That could increase but it is also likely to be reduced when some of the girls change their minds and decide to keep their babies.

The change in the local adoption picture has just appeared in the past month.

HOWARD'S STORY

Remorse—A Pain To Last Forever

The ghost of Howard Jackson was leaning over my shoulder earlier this week all the while I was writing a piece advocating a national sweepstakes like the Irish. If you looked closely you might have seen a balloon over my head containing the word "Regret."

I suppose at one time or another everyone has done something, innocently or inadvertently, that leaves a life-long feeling of remorse.

Robert M. Coates, the art critic, remembers once getting off a commuter train and bumping into a nondescript little man. The little man looked up eagerly into Coates' face and exclaimed, "Boy! Is this going to be a big day for me!" Coates, a shy man, could think of nothing to say, was simply puzzled, and, helpless, watched the stranger, suddenly crestfallen, disappear into the crowd. He never forgave himself for not having risen to the situation.

I remember once, at the New Weston Hotel in New York, crossing from the dining room to the bank of elevators to go up to my room. Three elevator doors were open. Their operators, attractive black girls in elaborate costumes, stood invitingly by each door. Unthinkingly, trying to be just too terribly charming, I pointed at each in turn and recited, "Eenie, meenie, minie, moe," only then remembering how the rest of it went, and rode up in the elevator tongue-tied with that lovely, stony-faced girl, unable to explain my gaffe.

But with Howard Jackson it had been a deliberate thing, forgivable, if at all, only because it was thoughtless. Perhaps that brings the worst kind of remorse.

There's a Howard Jackson in every newspaper composing room of the world. I expect, an out-going practical joker who takes it as his mission to relieve the nosiness of the printer's life. I have known such men on every paper I've worked for. Very often, their extroversion is a cover for a sensitive, even retiring nature. Oh, you find that in every shop.

Traditionally, the butt of the tension-breaking jokes in any composing room is the shop apprentice or the editorial copy boy. They must grin and bear it or they'll never enjoy the camaraderie of that exclusive club of men who physically make the newspaper.

Joey, the composing room apprentice, and I, the editorial copy boy, grinded and bore it from Howard Jackson. At any slack time he might rise from his 10-point machine down the long, clanking, shuffling rows of Linotypes and descend upon us, bellowing, to administer some new torture.

It was Howard who first showed me type like. I remember him still bending over the form, looking intently at the water lying between two sticks of type and then Howard smashing the two sticks together, showering me with water. That was type like. It was Howard who sent Joey and me to the opposition paper to get the "keys to the press." The "keys" were enormous, 50-pound crowbars that we carried through the streets and back into the composing room to a roar of laughter. We stoically endured many another of Howard's pranks, as boys have endured them in shops across the years.

But stoicism turned to fear and a kind of hatred when Howard began to organize a movement to give us "the ink baptism." That was a tradition long since dead in every composing room. To put it as nicely as possible the idea was to paint with printer's ink that part of a boy's body that a boy would least like to have painted.

I think now that Howard never meant to carry this through, but day after day there were threats that tomorrow would be the ceremonial day. For weeks Joey and I lived in an agony of expectation. It was out of this that we developed our diabolical plan to even the score.

Howard was a regular purchaser of tickets on the Irish sweep, always under the pseudonym "Sonny Boy." It was no secret that, more than most men, he saw winning it as his only hope of escape from that monstrous machine, breathing its fumes of molten lead, grinding out its hot slugs of type day after day, month after month, year after year.

Joey and I worked it all too well.

On the United Press teletype in the editorial office I punched out the story that began: "Dublin (UPI) — A Vancouver, British Columbia, man identified only by the pseudonym 'Sonny Boy' was revealed today to be a $300,000 winner in the Irish Hospitals Sweepstakes . . ."

I edited the copy, wrote a five-column head for it, and marked the lead (first paragraph) in 10 point. That meant that Howard, on the 10-point machine, would voluntarily pick it up from the desk of the head machine. That act of his own volition, would do the trick, we were convinced.

They told us afterwards that there was a wild shout of joy as Howard began setting the opening words in 10 point, a roar that suddenly brought a terrible hush over the composing room. It's not a scene I can bring myself to dwell on, even less than the moment that cooler heads saw through the whole sham.

Howard Jackson never spoke to either of us again. He never again demonstrated type like to a copy boy or an apprentice, never again sent a lad for the keys to the press.

Once, weeks later, Joey and I decided to present ourselves voluntarily for the ceremony of the baptism in printer's ink, but we could not bring ourselves to face him. We had learned, at an early age, that remorse can't be settled by a quick payment, but only by the attrition of the years.

While it's sudden and severe, it's not altogether a surprise, says Gordon Wright, FCS director.

He notes that trends which show up in Vancouver have a way of arriving in Victoria a few months later. In Vancouver there has already been a sharp drop in the number of babies available for adoption.

It means that adopting parents in Greater Victoria could find themselves waiting twice as long, six to nine months or longer.

On the face of it, a logical explanation appears to be the rapid rise in therapeutic abortions under law liberalized a year ago. That's a factor but by no means the only one, says Wright.

Perhaps just as important is increasing social acceptance of unmarried mothers. So more girls are keeping their babies.

Other factors:

- A general increase in the availability and use of birth control methods.
- An apparent shift in population groups so there are more potential adopting

Workers, City Hall Settle

A dispute between 270 outside workers and Victoria city hall was settled Thursday.

The settlement is the result of a mediation meeting conducted by Clark Gilmour last Saturday. Council accepted the new terms Thursday afternoon in closed session and the union local voted to accept Thursday night.

The wage proposal originally made by the city was not changed in the mediated settlement, city manager Bill Hooson said.

The central area in dispute concerned the wage rates of casual laborers and council agreed to improve this area.

Under the new agreement the casual labor rate — now to be called "seasonal" — will be paid only to employees hired between April 1 and Sept. 30. It is $3.17 an hour.

FURTHER CONCESSION

Any laborer hired during the rest of the year will start at the full basic rate of $3.33. Formerly, all newly hired laborers got the lower rate for the first six months of employment.

As a further concession of the union, council agreed to write a letter of agreement outside the union contract ensuring the city will not fire full-time laborers and hire seasonal workers as an economic measure.

The agreement still falls somewhat short of the equivalent agreement in Saanich, from the earlier offer by the city included an increase from 15 to 20 cents in danger pay for ditch-digging below an eight-foot depth, and an improved rate for pesticide sprayers. Better rubber clothing will also be provided for sewer workers.

Solicitor-General Here on Monday

Solicitor-General Jean-Pierre Goyer, the man in charge of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police and Canada's prisons, will be in Victoria Monday.

He is on government business, Goyer will take time out to attend an informal dessert party from 6:30 to 8:30 p.m. in the war Amputations Hall, Oak Bay Avenue.

A girl's decision on whether to keep her baby is ultimately hers alone, says Mrs. Faye McBride, supervisor of the unmarried parents section. A social agency is there to assist, no matter whatever her choice. But the trend to more girls keeping their babies can be seen right across Canada.

Wright says the Family and Children's Service has no intention of reverting to the sort of standards of placement which existed a decade ago in social agencies.

In those days parents who could not have children were given priority.

The FCS will continue to consider applications on the basis of who is best able to care for the child, regardless of whether they already have children or not.

Allegations Unfounded Prof. Toynton Says

The Victoria Daily Times on Tuesday, March 2, published certain excerpts from a University of Victoria document signed by four members of the Department of Visual Arts, Donald Harvey, Eric Hilton, Peter Daglish and Dana Atchley.

Professor Norman Toynton points out that these statements reflected on his integrity and professional reputation and his carrying out of his responsibilities as chairman of the Department of Visual Arts.

The Times is advised by Prof. Toynton that these allegations are entirely unfounded, and the Times now states there was no intention to cast any reflection whatsoever upon the integrity or professional reputation of Prof. Toynton. The Times regrets any embarrassment or inconvenience to Prof. Toynton resulting from the publication of this story.

'PEACHY KEEN' WEATHER SAYS McKEAN

Up to 20,000 to March on Saturday

Greater Victoria marchers will join walkers for charity all around the world Saturday in the area's first miles for Millions outing in 18 months. Somewhere between 10,000 and 20,000 marchers are expected to raise more than $100,000 in the 25-mile walkathon here, part of International walk weekend in almost every free country in the world.

The weatherman is offering ideal marching weather, with temperatures in the mid-60s and a 15-mph westerly wind under occasional cloud.

EAT LIGHTLY

"Peachy keen," said march organizer Bruce McLean, who was treasurer for the November, 1969, march which raised $105,000. "Marching is not work, and people are tanning all over the place in bright, hot weather."

McLean advises marchers not to overdress and to eat lightly, perhaps nibbling on barley sugar, raisins or chocolate. He also advises wearing two pairs of socks, one thin and one thicker, and breaking in footwear. He has learned these little lessons from "biting" marchers.

McLean says 20,000 forms have been picked up by would-be marchers, and expects another few thousand to register early Saturday before the 8:30 a.m. kick-off at University of Victoria stadium.

Key checkpoints will include Willows Park, Beacon Hill Park, Gorge and Tidemark, Thomas More Centre.

Rest room facilities will be provided at nine of the 15 checkpoints. Progress will be monitored by cars in citizens' forms being used.

The paper work is unusually complex and is causing headaches for the organizers, McLean admits.

"Last time (in 1969) we were a little too loose, and maybe we've gone too far in the other direction," he says. "But at least we'll know exactly what's going on."

21 CHARITIES

The march will benefit 21 local and other charities. They include Environment 100, Queen Alexandra Solarium, Victoria Youth Council, Saanich Indian School Board, Victoria Outreach and the Detached Workers Program.

Other beneficiaries include Canadian University Service Overseas, UNICEF, OXFAM, Unitarian Service Committee and the Canadian Peace Research Institute.

Police have asked marchers to use sidewalks instead of streets so traffic will be impeded as little as possible.

St. John Ambulance personnel will be deployed along

QUEEN TO REWARD ARBUTUS BANDSMEN

Sixty-five excited young musicians from Arbutus Junior Secondary in Victoria tonight receive a trophy from Queen Elizabeth.

They placed first in the junior band class at the centennial provincial school band and choir festival held this week at the University of British Columbia.

The band, under the direction of Emil Michaux, won in competition against 11 of the top junior bands in the province. They were selected for the provincial festival after placing first in the Greater Victoria music festival competition last week.

The Queen will present trophies to the winning bands and chairs following a concert in Vancouver's Coliseum and the Arbutus boys and girls return home Saturday at 1:30 p.m.

IN PAST YEARS, PICKING UP A BRITISH COLUMBIA campfire permit was easy as falling off a log. The nearest sporting goods store would issue one on request. You signed it, perhaps glanced at the conditions printed on its back, and were set for the season.

The agreement still falls somewhat short of the equivalent agreement in Saanich, from the earlier offer by the city included an increase from 15 to 20 cents in danger pay for ditch-digging below an eight-foot depth, and an improved rate for pesticide sprayers. Better rubber clothing will also be provided for sewer workers.

For another, they're being issued to cover specified periods only although I understand from a B.C. Forest Service spokesman that the outdoors-minded who head out each weekend may still be able to wangle season tickets.

A further change: permits can be obtained only at ranger stations or from certain selected outlets in remote areas where Forest Service depots are few and far between.

But another fire season has now begun, and some changes have been made.

Though still free to the seeker, this year's permit isn't the familiar little rectangle of past seasons. It's larger in size, less casually obtainable, and more restrictive.

For one thing, the new permits are only valid in the forest district for which each is granted.

For another, they're being issued to cover specified periods only although I understand from a B.C. Forest Service spokesman that the outdoors-minded who head out each weekend may still be able to wangle season tickets.

At this point in the rundown, I suggested that Smoky the Bear was showing his fangs.

Not so, the Forest Service representative assured me. "What we're trying to do," he said, "is key the issuance of campfire permits to individual requirements. The tightening up isn't intended to be a penalty. What we hope to do is make people more conscious of the forest fire situation, and to exert more sensible controls."

How well can we expect the new system to work? It will take a fire season — and may this one be less costly than last year's — to provide answers.

My own hunch is that those who have always taken pains to leave no campfire smoldering will exert their customary care, while those who fires get out of hand will continue to rack up a forest damage score.

Not so, the Forest Service representative assured me.

Don't light a fire where there's the slightest chance of touching off grass, brush, beach drift, or rotting wood duff. That last can smoulder for months underground, then trigger a hot one.

Don't assume that a fire is not merely because you've snuffed a little water on it.

In fact, says one forestry man, don't consider a campfire dead until you can muddle a hand around in its ash and char without encountering even a hint of warmth.

That trouble source, however, did contribute to the 4,000 woods blazes battled in 1970 at a record cost of more than $9 million. With this in mind, and remembering that a permit is required in fire season before you so much as set flames dancing under provincial park gate, here are a few suggestions:

Efficient Filter Goes Up in Smoke

TORONTO (CP) — The cigarette with the highly-efficient Strickman filter has vanished from the North American market because of poor public response.

Both Imperial Tobacco Products Ltd. of Montreal and Rothmans of Pall Mall Canada Ltd., Toronto, the only two North American companies that manufactured a brand with the filter, have stopped production.

Imperial produced a brand called Richmond and Rothmans made Ransom. A spokesman for Rothmans said Thursday it stopped-making Ransom in February. Imperial withdrew its brand late last year.

The filter, invented by Robert L. Strickman of the United States, reduces sharply the tar by any U.S. manufacturer, and nicotine inhaled by smokers.

"It was assumed in 1968 that the cigarette would have consumer acceptance," said a spokesman for Imperial. "But it never did. Smokers felt the cigarette was tasteless."

The Rothmans brand met a similar response.

"It was mostly curiosity buying at first," said R. H. Hawkes, a company vice-president.

ACQUIRED RIGHTS

The two Canadian companies acquired rights to the filter for an undisclosed down payment and for subsequent royalty payments. The filter was not used by any U.S. manufacturer, and the company had notified the Strickman Foundation in New York that it is relinquishing rights to use of the filter.

Mr. Strickman is reported to have turned over royalties of about $75,000 from the two Canadian companies to the foundation which he set up for charitable purposes.

Columbia University in New York was involved in the filter's development.

Mr. Strickman gave the university 51 per cent of the rights to the filter but after spending $400,000 on further development and testing of the filter, the university returned the rights to him.

1976 Political Deadline Puts Auto-Makers Up Against Wall

WASHINGTON (AP) — The world's auto-makers doubt they can produce a 1976-model car that will meet all the stringent U.S. air pollution laws now on the books.

"At this point in time we have no way of controlling oxides of nitrogen to the extremely low levels which could be required by the Clean Air amendments of 1970," Edward N. Cole, president of General Motors, said today in a prepared statement. "Based on current technology and results we have achieved to date—and assuming modification in the test procedure—we are hopeful that the average emission levels from 1975 model General Motors cars can meet the standards for hydrocarbons and carbon monoxide," Cole added.

Cole made his statements at an Environmental Protection Agency hearing on industry efforts to reduce the discharge of pollutants into the air.

Law requires manufacturers to cut hydrocarbon, carbon monoxide and nitrogen oxide emissions by 90 to 98 per cent by 1975.

PERMITS EXTENSION

The law permits EPA Administrator William Ruckelshaus to extend the deadline for one year if he is convinced the individual car makers have made "good faith" efforts to comply with the regulations.

Cole's statements were echoed by spokesmen for Ford and Chrysler, and for foreign auto-makers such as Volkswagen and Toyota.

Cole also said the Clean Air Act passed by Congress last year calling for the reduction of exhaust pollutants poses "one of the most formidable technical assignments our company has ever faced."

"If that question was solved . . . farmers would not need cash advances because the cash position of farmers would be partially, if not completely, remedied."

Grain Pay Overhaul Gets Second Reading

OTTAWA (CP) — Government legislation to change the system of interest-free cash advances on unsold grain made to farmers Thursday survived three days of Commons debate and an opposition attempt to kill the measure.

The legislation, a series of amendments changing the Prairie Farm Advance Payments Act enacted by a Conservative government in 1957, was sent to committee for detailed study after receiving second reading approval in principle.

The amendments would base the advances on the amount of grain the Canadian wheat board expects to buy from individual farmers and the price it expects to pay. Loans now are determined by the price the farmer receives on his first delivery of grain to an elevator.

The bill also would apply advances to rapeseed, flax and rye—if those three grains are placed under wheat board jurisdiction. Wheat, barley and oats are the only grains now marketed by the agency.

MOTION DEFEATED

A motion aimed at killing the bill, by Stan Schumacher (PC-Palliser), was defeated 73 to 31. Conservatives and Social Crediters were outvoted by the government, the New Democrats and Roch La Salle (Ind.-Joliette).

Standing in the 264-seat Commons: Liberals 156; Conservatives 71, NDP 23, Social Credit, 13, Ind. 2, vacant 5.

Mr. Schumacher said including rapeseed would hinder the marketing of a grain that had done very well on its own.

Elton Woollams (PC-Calgary North) said farmers would have no need for cash advances if the government solved current problems in the provincial trade of agricultural products.

Do you know why?

One taste will tell you! There's a subtle quality to this sophisticated import which explains its growing popularity. If this were an ordinary gin we would have put it in an ordinary gin bottle. Provençal Tanqueray.

'Chicken Feed' Budget Cuts Continue

After two days of what one alderman called "chicken feed" budget cutting, Victoria city taxpayers still face a tax increase of 5.5 mills.

The figure is down from the 7.82 mills council started with Wednesday morning, but some aldermen want to get down to the four-mill levy.

Finishing a long afternoon session of attacking the record budget, Ald. Tom Christie remarked, "These guys don't know how to slash a budget — that was just chicken feed."

Council met again this afternoon.

SOME REGRET

Last year's mill rate reduction — from 39.3 to 37.5 — was recalled with some regret as the meeting session ended.

Aldermen did suggest, however, that since there was a reduction last year, this year's increase is not so unsavory.

The budget cuts amounted to roughly $380,000 from the preliminary budget of $25,244,863. Last year's actual expenditures were $22,499,329.

Facing the large increase in the budget prompted suggestions of ways to improve administration and cut back on the cost of some services.

CONTRACTING OUT

The administration was asked to study the possibility of bringing the traffic engineering department under the public works department, and eliminating the civil defence organization in the city.

Ald. Harold Olafson tried to convince aldermen that contracting out janitorial, gardening and other services would bring savings through elimination of employee fringe benefit costs, but no action was taken.

If the 5.5 mills increase is taken into account, the full municipal, school, hospital mill rate for Victoria property owners is 75.41.

This means taxpayers would pay $75.41 taxes for each $1,000 worth of taxable assessment.

Some assessments are up this year, so that actual tax increases to individuals will be higher on both counts.

QUEEN

Chief Dan George, who attended the private dinner with his daughter, said he had spoken with the Queen, but was "too shy" to ask whether she had seen the movie Little Big Man for which he won an Academy Award nomination.

CHIEF IMPRESSIVE

The chief was an impressive figure in his black beaded and sequined costume, made for him by his late wife. The costume, he explained, is the ceremonial garb of the Coast Salish, which comprises many tribes.

Another guest at the dinner was Steve Garrod, recently elected president of the Alma Mater Society of the University of British Columbia, who describes himself as a hippie, anti-monarchy radical.

He was told by police that he had arrived too late to get aboard. But word came from the yacht that he be allowed to join the dinner party.

Today, the royal family stayed in the Vancouver-New Westminster-Burnaby area on a 12-hour schedule that included a citizenship court appearance, a Vancouver civic dinner and a visit to New Westminster May Day celebrations.

Shadow Mischief

By DAVE STOCKARD

VAN COUVER (CP) — Some of the wilder fringes of a new and unpredictable generation brushed shoulders Thursday with the Royal Family.

A guest turned up late for a private dinner party aboard the royal yacht Britannia, in a motorcade of wildly decorated old cars and wearing a velvet suit and a wide-brimmed fur hat.

And on another occasion a young man bolted out of the crowd and thrust a package into the Queen's hands.

As it turned out, the wrapped object was a small gift of affection — a jade cross — but it was the kind of unscheduled offering that makes security men nervous.

But it was a brief flap. As a royal tour official put it later, when the Queen, Prince Philip and Princess Anne had flown back to Vancouver from Kamloops, the incident occurred:

"He was not arrested. He just wanted to do his little thing and he did it."

DONOR AN ACTOR

The impromptu gift-giver identified himself as Patrick Ehret, 21, an unemployed actor from Kamloops and member of the Baha'i faith.

He said he thought the Queen was marvellous and he meant no harm.

The man who arrived at Britannia's berth wearing the fur hat was Steve Garrod, president of the University of British Columbia student council.

He describes himself as a hippie, anti-monarchy radical.

He was told by police that he had arrived too late to get aboard. But word came from the yacht that he be allowed to join the dinner party.

These occurrences were oddball exceptions in a generally relaxing day in which the Royal Family — on the fourth day of a 10-day B.C. centennial tour — visited the Okanagan Valley communities of Kelowna and Vernon and made an airport appearance at Kamloops before flying to Vancouver for the Britannia dinner party.

They had spent the previous night in Penticton, another Okanagan community. It was their only hotel stop. Prior to that, and from now on, their home away from home will be the Britannia.

It is to be the second major housing proposal in this general area.

Last month, Thetis Park Estates Ltd. announced plans for a 500 to 700-acre subdivision on the west side of Thetis Lake Park.

The Broadmead Farms Ltd. subdivision in the Royal Oak district of Saanich, under way for several years, will cover 713 acres.

The gravel pit proposal would involve relocation of the existing Metchosin Road for terraced digging of close to 30 million tons of gravel, it is understood.

The development envisages an 18-hole golf course as well as a public park on 10 acres overlooking the sea.

Construction of a waterfront road would link the planned development with Esquimalt Lagoon.

Other features of the development are understood to include:

- The first phase of the development would be single houses and the golf course;
- A yacht and small boat marina;
- Total open space would be almost 200 acres.

The existing gravel pit is believed to have a life of 15 years. Terraced areas would be used for high-rise and medium-rise apartments.

Because of the effects of such a large residential development, close attention is expected to be paid to such local services as streets, sewers and so on.

Area Students Take Part In Census-Linked Project

Students in all but two Greater Victoria district elementary, junior and senior secondary schools will be asked to participate in a nation-wide census project during the last two weeks of May.

The program was announced Thursday by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics in Ottawa and will involve nearly one million students in 21 metropolitan areas in Canada.

The project is designed to give students an understanding of how the census works and prepare them to assist their parents, if necessary, in completing the official census questionnaires which all households will receive starting May 25.

TWO SCHOOLS OUT

The official census is compulsory, but the school project is voluntary.

Victoria school board community information officer Bill Stavdal said today S. J. Willis Junior Secondary and Dean Heights Vocational will not participate.

Sooke and Saanich district schools also are not in the project.

Participating students in social studies classes will fill out special student census forms asking 14 questions.

No names will be entered on the forms. The data will be computer-processed in Ottawa and returned to participating districts in about a year.

Victoria school board chairman Allan McKinnon said the scheme is valid because it explains to young people how an important national project works.

DBS PROJECT

McKinnon said the project was initiated by the DBS, which contacted the board and received its approval last fall. The project was to have begun in January or February but was delayed until May.

The federal census differs this year from past censuses in that households must complete the questionnaires themselves. For this reason, McKinnon said, the DBS "wants to create a favorable image or climate to conduct the census in."

Part of the way to do this, he said, is to make school children familiar with the process.

Questions the students will be answering include, sex, age, place of parents' birth, how much television they watch a week, how much reading they do each week, what sections of the newspaper they read and their most important reason for attending school.

The Victoria end of the project will involve 17,000 students in 537 classes.

When the data from the student census has been tabulated, copies will be prepared in a way which will allow teachers, students and school officials to compare the characteristics of students in their districts with those of students across the country.

Ontario to Investigate Fees Paid 50 Doctors by OHSIP

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Ontario Health Minister A. B. R. Lawrence promised Thursday he would investigate about 50 doctors who have charged the Ontario Health Services Insurance Plan the most.

He was replying to Dr. Morton Shulman (NDP-Toronto High Park) who asked in the legislature if some doctors were receiving more than $350,000 a year from OHSIP.

The Newfoundland legislature gave approval in principle to a bill altering procedures for non-voluntary admittance of patients to mental hospitals.

And the Manitoba legislature gave approval in principle to a lottery bill.

At Toronto, Mr. Lawrence said outside the legislature some doctors are getting more than $200,000 a year from OHSIP.

These were gross payments and so did not represent personal income, he said, but on the other hand the figures did not include what doctors were getting through private insurance companies or from additional billing of patients.

Mr. Lawrence said he will give his findings to the Ontario College of Physicians and Surgeons and would make sure he and the college have the legal powers to discipline any doctors whose high billings to OHSIP are not justified.

The mental health bill given second reading in the Newfoundland house would replace outdated existing laws, some passed in 1853.

Under the bill, a person could be detained for one year in hospital on the basis of a certificate signed by one doctor. A separate certificate would be required for each succeeding year of detention.

Mr. Lawrence said he will give his findings to the Ontario College of Physicians and Surgeons and would make sure he and the college have the legal powers to discipline any doctors whose high billings to OHSIP are not justified.

Andre Robichaud (L-Gloucester) told the New Brunswick legislature that restrictive legislation was not the proper way to deal with pornography in the media.

Mr. Robichaud said education was the key to the problem and suggested greater emphasis be placed on sex education, perhaps starting first with parents.

The lottery to be set up under the Manitoba bill would be similar to the 1970 Manitoba Centennial Lottery. When the bill passes, it is expected there will be three draws in 1971 based on various sporting events.

Maui-Bound Ketch Provides Sailpast Base

A newly-built 45-foot ketch, destined to race in the 1972 Victoria-Maui race then take off on an around-the-world cruise, will be the sailing base when the Esquimalt Squadron, Canadian Forces Sailing Association, holds its official opening day Sunday.

She is Frank Lane's Eviva and was completed in March, two years after her keel was laid. She's a handsome boat with teak decks, Douglas fir planking from the Cowichan Valley, and accommodation for eight.

Commodore R. V. Henning, base commander of CFB Esquimalt, will be aboard Eviva to take the salute at the sailpast which follows a flag-raising ceremony at 1:30 p.m. others aboard will include Esquimalt Ald. Jack Gourlay and his wife, the commodore of the Royal Victoria Yacht Club and the Turkey Head Sailing Association, and the president of the Elk lake sailing Association.

Once the pomp and ceremony is over, Salierette skippers and crews will don sailing togs for the Top Dog Pennant race which has become a feature of opening day at Esquimalt.

They'll be out in a 48-mile overnight race in the Strait of Juan de Fuca which begins at 5 p.m. Saturday off Gonzales Point. The race committee has set PIYA category 1 as safety requirements, which includes carrying an inflatable liferaft, emergency steering and other equipment.

There were 24 boats on the start line for the first race in the Turkey Head Sailing Association's summer series Tuesday off Oak Bay Marina.

Dennis Woodward's Puff was first overall. Charlottetown right winger Kevin Devine scored two goals while linemate D'Arcy Murphy's tally at 17:04 of the second period proved to be the lead.

Angus Beck added an insurance goal for Charlottetown at the 15:30 mark of the period.

Both benches cleared during a second-period brawl in which each team took 10 penalties. It took officials 15 minutes to restore order.

Ken McLash, Mick Girard and Brian Ogilvie scored goals for Red Deer in the first period while Devine had the only Charlottetown tally.

The Islanders, scoring four unanswered second-period goals Thursday night, downed the Prairie visitors 6-4. Their victory left Red Deer with a 2-1 lead in the series.

Charlottetown right winger Kevin Devine scored two goals while linemate D'Arcy Murphy's tally at 17:04 of the second period proved to be the lead.

Win-War Corps Comes In As End-War Group Leaves

Times News Services

WASHINGTON — As the peace people faded in retreat from the streets of the U.S. Capitol today, Rev. Carl McIntire and his Bible-carrying cohorts were warming up for Saturday's planned win-the-war march to the Washington Monument.

The protesters for peace, their design to stop the wag in Vietnam by stopping the government, frustrated but not abandoned, vowed to return.

"This country is going to have to deal with us," said demonstration organizer Renie Davis. "It's not enough to put us all in jail because we're all willing to go to jail and stay there to end the war."

SECOND MARCH

His supporters had faltered against the government's overwhelming and well-prepared police and military power. Arrested by the thousands, they ran out of bodies.

The McIntire-sponsored march for a military victory, his second here in six months, follows three weeks of anti-war demonstrations. Tonight, to warm up for the march, McIntire plans a service on the steps of Congress.

McIntire said he is sticking to his prediction that the win-the-war march from the Capitol to the Washington Monument will attract a crowd outnumbering the big April 24 anti-war march. He declined to say whether he meant the 500,000 marchers claimed or the police figure of 175,000.

He used the figure "350,000 to 500,000" earlier in the week.

HYDRO TOWER SABOTAGED

AGASSIZ (CP) — Police said Thursday night a man-made explosion damaged a B.C. Hydro transmission tower near here, sending a 360,000-volt power line plunging into the Fraser River.

The explosion partially collapsed the tower about half a mile south of the Agassiz-Rosedale bridge. Alternative power lines automatically took up the power load and there was no interruption in service.

RCMP said the explosion was man-made but were unable to find any evidence as to the type of explosive used.

The damage was first reported by tugboat crews who found a conductor in the river. The tower supported the power line where it spans the Fraser River.

Royal Marine Parade Followed by Banquet

By JUDY CUBBIE

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Royal Marines, white plin helmets reflecting the moonlight, beat a ceremonial retreat Thursday night to bring to a close the fourth full day of the royal tour of British Columbia.

The nearly 200 guests at a reception on the royal yacht Britannia lined the railings of the vessel to watch the impressive ceremonial royal march along a darkened dock. The evening drew to a close with the sunset ceremony and the lowering of the Canadian flag and the white ensign of the Royal Navy.

The Royal Family returned to Vancouver from a two-day tour of the British Columbia interior Thursday evening to entertain 40 guests at a private dinner on the yacht, and 180 more at a reception which followed.

The reception was on the deck of the Queen's yacht, covered with a red and white striped awning for the occasion.

Among those present were many civic leaders, including mayors of the Greater Vancouver municipalities, provincial and federal government figures.

Members of the Vancouver and Victoria business community were present, as were people like skier Nancy Greene Raine, Chief Dan George, and Jane Jorgenson, Miss Teen Canada 1970.

ON TANKER 'DECISION'

PM Wants Speech

By JOHN MIKA
Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Prime Minister Pierre Elliot Trudeau today told the Commons he would examine the speech made Thursday by Energy, Mines and Resources Deputy Minister Jack Austin in Anchorage, Alaska, to determine if it needed cabinet clarification.

He was replying to questions by Tom Barnett (NDP-Cowichan-Alberni) who expressed concern that Austin had declared Ottawa was prepared "to accept the proposed tanker route for Alaskan oil if the U.S. gave assurances precautionary measures would be taken to protect the Canadian coast from pollution damage. "I am not aware of that statement," Trudeau replied.

Barnett rephrased his question to ask "whether Canada has officially indicated to the U.S. the terms and conditions which this country feels would be acceptable for the establishment of an oil tanker route on the Pacific between Alaska and other states of the U.S."

The prime minister replied he was "rather sure" Canadian officials had not done so because Ottawa had no legal right to tell the U.S. how it can move oil on the high seas.

Neither Energy, Mines and Resources Minister J. J. Greene nor External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp were in the Commons and the prime minister did not indicate which one he would consult.

Sharp has been directing official government contacts with Washington about the proposed Alaskan pipeline/tanker route, which he personally has criticized as a threat to B.C. lower mainland waters.

He was attacked earlier this week by opposition MPs for not ordering the Canadian delegation last Monday in Washington to demand abandonment of the proposal instead of asking about safety features.

Text of Austin's speech to U.S. oil engineers in Alaska Thursday said Canada would accept the U.S. decision on either route.

If it involved tankers, Ottawa would want assurances of environmental protection for Canadian territory and if it involved the Canadian pipeline Ottawa would be willing to give reciprocal assurances, he said.

However, Austin added the northern oil route controversy was a minor problem in comparison with the whole question of future energy policies in both countries.

He said he was certain the sheer size of the total energy problem would result in both countries agreeing on a "balance of objectives" of mutual advantage in oil, gas and all energy resource development and use — apparently a euphemism on the controversial "continental energy" concept.

Cong Insist On U.S. Withdrawal

PARIS (WP) — The Vietnamese Communists Thursday insisted that the U.S. set a firm date for total, unconditional withdrawal from Vietnam, and rejected U.S. attempts to discuss a mutual withdrawal involving North Vietnam, Laos and Cambodia.

The 112th session of the deadlocked Vietnam peace talks served to clear apparent ambiguities in Communist statements at previous sessions.

Last week's North Vietnamese profession of readiness to discuss a "reasonable" withdrawal date with the U.S. — a profession that seemed to him at unconditional secret talks — was clarified by Hanoi press spokesman Nguyen Thanh Le as follows:

"In order for the parties to enter into discussion, it is indispensable that the U.S. fix a date for total withdrawal ... once the date is fixed, we shall examine whether it is reasonable or not."

DISCUSSION

Hanoi negotiator Xuan Thuy intervened four times, and Viet Cong delegate Nguyen Thi Binh six times, in the conference discussion to demand that the U.S. name the "day, month and year" it would remove all its forces from South Vietnam. However, they declined to specify what they would do if such a date were named.

U.S. negotiator David K. E. Bruce succeeded, in a series of six questions, in removing doubts as to Xuan Thuy's intriguing promise last week that, if a timetable on U.S. withdrawal were agreed, "all military personnel participating in the war can go home."

W. Germany Poised To Let Mark Float

BONN (CP) — Economics Minister Karl Schiller won wide cabinet support today for his proposal to unilaterally float the West German mark if a Common Market meeting in Brussels Saturday cannot agree on joint action to halt the massive U.S. dollar inflow into Europe.

Government spokesman Conrad Ahlers indicated this to reporters as the cabinet broke up for lunch before continuing its deliberations on a broad program of external and internal economic stabilization measures to deal with the dollar crisis.

Ahlers said the cabinet spent most of the morning discussing proposals to float the mark. He gave no details but said, in answer to questions, that its members had been "overwhelmingly unanimous" on the issue.

Earlier, informed sources said Schiller had proposed to the cabinet that the mark should be floated unless Saturday's meeting of the Common Market's council of ministers in Brussels agreed to stop the U.S. dollar flow by joint European measures that are in line with "free market economy" principles.

SEEKS OWN LEVEL

This would mean that, instead of being fixed to an upper and lower exchange rate against the U.S. dollar as at present, it would be released and allowed to find its own level on foreign currency markets.

Such a move could be tantamount to revaluation. The mark was floated for nearly four weeks in October, 1969, before being revalued by 9.29 per cent.

The government's five-man council of independent economic advisers said in a report they published today favoring a floating mark that it would probably lead to an increase in the value of the mark against foreign currencies.

The council, known here as "the five wise men," said they had proposed the floating to Schiller at a meeting Thursday on the assumption that the six Common Market partners would be unable to

HELP FOR HOME BUYERS

OTTAWA (CP) — The government is seeking agreements with the provinces to provide interest-rate rebates to home-buyers. Robert Andras, minister responsible for housing, told the Commons today.

He said Quebec had already agreed to make three-per-cent interest rebates to lower the cost of housing and other similar agreements were being discussed.

Under the plan, the interest on loans for housing would be partially paid by the provincial government. It applies to purchasers with low incomes.
